The report shall include the following:

- (1) The number of children participating in the NC Pre-K program by county.
- (2) The number of children participating in the NC Pre-K program who have never been served in other early education programs such as child care, public or private preschool, Head Start, Early Head Start, or early intervention programs.
- (3) The expected NC Pre-K expenditures for the programs and the source of the local contributions.
- (4) The results of an annual evaluation of the NC Pre-K program.

Following are the report data as required by items 1 through 4 above.

- (1) The number of children participating in the NC Pre-K program by county: A total of 26,617 children are in contract to receive NC Pre-K services in SFY 13-14. See the attached chart for the number of children contracted by county.
- (2) The number of children participating in the NC Pre-K program who have never been served in other early education programs such as child care, public or private preschool, Head Start, Early Head Start, or early intervention programs. Of the children participating in NC Pre-K in SFY 13-14, contractors reported that 61% had never been served in other early education programs, 16% had previously been served by an early education program but were not being served at the time of application, and the remaining 23% were enrolled in some other such early education program at the time of application.
- (3) The expected NC Pre-K expenditures for the programs and the source of the local contributions. The SFY 13-14 Year-to-Date expenditures for NC Pre-K through January 31, 2014 total $67,423,424.85. The source of local contributions as certified and reported by NC Pre-K contractors from July 1, 2013 through November 30, 2013 are noted in the chart below.

(4) The results of an annual evaluation of the NC Pre-K program

The Division of Child Development and Early Education contracts with the Frank Porter Graham Child Development Institute to conduct an annual evaluation of the NC Pre-K program. During the SFY 2012-13 program year, the evaluation focused on the characteristics of the local programs, the quality of the Pre-K classrooms, and the outcomes of children attending the Pre-K programs.

Information was gathered from statewide databases about characteristics of the program and children's demographics. Observations in a random sample of 99 NC Pre-K classrooms provided information on classroom quality, and teacher surveys gave information about classroom characteristics and teacher perceptions. Data on child outcomes were gathered in a sample of 561 children at the beginning and end of the program year to analyze changes in language, literacy, math, general knowledge, and behavior skills. Where possible, data on program characteristics, classroom quality, and child outcomes were compared to previous evaluations to examine changes over time.

The evaluation included these conclusions (excerpted from the Summary and Conclusions portion of the evaluation report). The full report will be posted on the Division's website on or around March 15, 2014. That website is: <http://ncchildcare.nc.gov>.

Program Characteristics:

- Many of the characteristics of the NC Pre-K Program were consistent with good quality standards, as well as program guidelines.
- In general, most program characteristics have been fairly stable over time.
- One continuing trend in the NC Pre-K Program has been a steady improvement in the levels of teacher education and credentials, with increases in both of these areas in 2012-2013, compared to past years.

Classroom Quality:

- The quality of NC Pre-K classrooms in the 2012-2013 sample was in the medium to good range overall, across a number of different aspects of classroom practices.
- In general, the quality of the NC Pre-K Program has remained relatively stable over time, although there have been a few changes compared to more recent cohorts.
- Lower class size and a higher proportion of NC Pre-K children in the classroom were associated with higher quality.

Child Outcomes:

- Children in the NC Pre-K Program exhibited significant growth during their pre-k year across all domains of learning, with scores generally in the expected range for their age group.
- The pattern of growth in skills shown by children in the NC Pre-K Program has been consistent over time.

- Children's level of English proficiency was associated with different rates of growth for some skills and similar rates for others. (Children with lower levels of English proficiency made greater gains than their peers in some areas.)
- There were no strong associations between classroom quality and children's growth in academic skills during the NC Pre-K Program (However, few classrooms score in the low range on quality measures, which may have prevented these associations being detected).
- Similarly to the full sample, children in the Dual Language Learner (DLL) subsample exhibited significant growth for all skills measured in English during pre-k and for most skills measured in Spanish.
- For DLLs, children with different levels of language proficiency experienced similar rates of growth during the NC Pre-K Program, both for skills measured in English and in Spanish.
- DLLs in classrooms with better quality language and literacy environments made greater gains in language and literacy skills in English during the NC Pre-K Program.
