CRIMINAL JUSTICE PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM

SECTION 19.11.(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a county may use funds appropriated pursuant to the Criminal Justice Partnership Act, Article 6A of Chapter 143B of the General Statutes, to provide more than one community-based corrections program.

SECTION 19.11.(b) Effective July 1, 2009, the Department of Correction shall recalculate the county allocation funding formula mandated under G.S. 143B-273.15 using updated data.

SECTION 19.11.(d) The Department of Correction may not deny funds to a county to support both a residential program and a day reporting center if the Department of Correction determines that the county has a demonstrated need and a fully developed plan for each type of sanction.

SECTION 19.11.(e) The Department of Correction shall report by March 1 of each year to the Chairs of the House of Representatives and Senate Appropriations Committees, the House of Representatives and Senate Appropriations Subcommittees on Justice and Public Safety, and the Joint Legislative Corrections, Crime Control, and Juvenile Justice Oversight Committee on the status of the State-County Criminal Justice Partnership Program. Section 19.11 of SB 202 (S.L. 2009-451)

Introduction

The Criminal Justice Partnership Program (CJPP) provides grants to support community-based programs aimed at reducing recidivism, probation revocations, alcoholism and other drug dependencies, and the costs of incarceration to the state and counties; the Division of Community Corrections (DCC) administers the program. During FY 2009-2010, the eligible offender population or adult included adult sentenced offenders who receive an intermediate sanction, post-release or parole, a community punished offender who would benefit from the program participation, based on the results of a risk assessment.

For the FY 2009-2010, CJPP funded 83 programs which were operating in 94 counties. For a variety of reasons, four counties have never applied for or received funding (Bladen, Dare, Hyde and Lincoln). Two counties - Lee and Person - are funded but do not currently participate in CJPP. Over the history of CJPP, the types of programs operating have consolidated into three basic types as described below:

- Day Reporting Centers (18 total programs statewide) function as a restrictive intermediate punishment sanction within Structured Sentencing. Aiming to provide a measure of control and treatment, the centers provide increased structure to the offender's daily activities by requiring attendance at the day reporting center in combination with restrictive supervision from DCC. DCC probation officers are housed within each day reporting center, and noncompliant behavior receives an immediate response. Probation officers also assist with case management and planning, and deliver some direct services such as cognitive behavioral intervention counseling. Required core services include substance abuse treatment, drug screening, basic education assistance, cognitive behavioral intervention and employment assistance. Services are offered during both day and evening hours, and a continuum of consequences and rewards exists as a behavioral management tool. Free services that may be available are offered on-site and CJPP funds are not used to provide any duplication of existing services.
- Satellite Substance Abuse Programs (42 total programs statewide) function as a one-stop location for substance abuse treatment services. Treatment services are provided through a contractual agreement with a licensed provider. Services provided include assessments, individual treatment plans, and treatment programs of intensive outpatient or regular outpatient depending on the assessed need. Aftercare services are also included. DCC probation officers provide assistance to treatment staff with drug screening, attendance, and responses to noncompliant behavior.
- Resource Centers (23 total programs statewide) function as a one-stop location for a variety of services, similar to day reporting centers, but without the required core services included in a day reporting center. Services also may be delivered off-site through a referral process. Many of the same services offered within the day reporting centers are offered, depending upon the most important need for the county and funding support. DCC probation officers provide assistance as well.

Appendix A provides additional detail on each location and program type.

The total funds for CJPP have decreased since the program first was fully funded in FY 1995-1996. Originally, funding was established at $12 million annually: $9.6 million for "implementation" or operating funds grants and $2.4 million for discretionary grants.

In the intervening years, the General Assembly has implemented various types of reductions in CJPP funding, including across-the-board cuts; restricting funding to counties participating during the previous fiscal year; targeting cuts to counties operating day reporting centers and other programs for the funding of case manager positions; and the total elimination of discretionary grant funding. In an effort to assist counties with these funding reductions, in FY 2002-2003, the General Assembly authorized the reallocation of unspent or unclaimed CJPP funds on a case-by-case basis to counties in need of additional funding to maintain services.

For FY 2009-2010, the certified appropriation for CJPP was $9,410,863. The chart below illustrates the history of CJPP funding since FY 1994-95.

CJPP Program Funding History

For FY 2009-2010, grant awards to counties were based on the following formula pursuant to N.C.G.S. § 143B-273.15: (1) Twenty-five percent (25%) based on a fixed equal dollar amount for each county; (2) Fifty percent (50%) based on the county share of the state population; and (3) Twenty-five percent (25%) based on the intermediate punishment entry rate for the county, using the total of the three most recent years of data available divided by the average county population for that same period. The sum of these amounts represented the total amount of the funding that a county could apply. N.C.G.S. § 143B-273.15 also provided that "grants to participating counties are for a period of one fiscal year with unobligated funds being returned to the account at the end of the grant period." Funds are provided to participating counties on a reimbursement basis unless a county documents a need for an advance of grant funds.

Appendix B provides a list of each county's statutory appropriation and the amount of carryover funds for FY 2009-2010.

1. Funding Carryover FY 2008-2009 to 2009-2010:

CJPP funding does not revert at the end of a fiscal year. Instead, this amount is carried forward and can be used until August 15 and for the semiannual reallocated request.

$3,768,704	Carry-over funding
-$1,668,983	End of year expenditures (FY 2008-2009)
$2,099,721	(Carryover Balance)
- 0	Reallocation expenditures for (FY 2009-2010)
$2,099,721	(Carryover Balance)

2. Discretionary Funding FY 2009-10

During FY 2009-10, due to state budget constraints CJPP was not authorized to reallocate unspent or unclaimed funds to counties. For FY 2009-2010, $2,200,000 was reverted for the budget shortfall.

3. New Requests

Ninety-four of North Carolina's 100 counties receive CJPP funding. Of the remaining six counties, four counties have never participated in CJPP or applied for implementation funding: Bladen, Dare, Hyde and Lincoln. The remaining two counties—Lee and Person—are funded but do not participate in CJPP.

4. Electronic Reporting

All participating programs submit data via the CJPP Information Management System (CJPP IMS) An electronic database that provides offender specific data to be used to produce reliable outcome information. DCC administrative staff and CJPP community development specialists provide continual assistance, support and training to the programs in order to maintain consistent use.

5. Offender Participation Data

Each county has wide latitude under the Partnership Act to determine needs and program design through the local county advisory board. While DCC staff members provide oversight and technical assistance, the decision on what is best for the county is a local decision. All of the CJPP programs provide some combination of substance abuse treatment, education and employment services.

The average cost per offender per day for FY 2009-2010 was $21.61 for day reporting centers (DRC), $11.90 for satellite substance abuse (SSA) centers and $11.02 for resource centers (RC). These reported costs do not take into consideration expenditures funded by the county or any other outside sources, but do represent the total cost for all state funds, including administrative overhead. For FY 2009-2010, the following table provides the overall use statewide for each program type:

CJPP Statewide Utilization FY 2009-2010

Programs	Population on July 1, 2010	Entries	Exits	Offender Utilization	Yearly Offender Service Goal	Percent of Offender Goal Utilized	Cost Per Day Per Offender
SSA	763	1,792	1,727	2,555	2,739	93%	$ 11.90
DRC	656	1,421	1,429	2,077	2,601	80%	$ 21.61
RC	540	1,314	1,199	1,854	2,163	86%	$ 11.02
Totals	1,959	4,527	4,355	6,486	7,502	86%	$ 15.27

6. Analysis of Comparable Programs

DOC Research and Planning conducted an annual review of the offender participation data and program analysis, the results of which are contained in Appendix C. Appendix C contains a thorough analysis and comparison of the different types of CJPP programs. The report identifies three major objectives--protect the public, maintain compliance, and improve offender behavior--that are evaluated using the following intermediate outcome measures: demographics of admitted offenders; admission by Structured Sentencing grids; exits by reported exit type; program exits drug test results; success of offender services; and employment data. The analysis indicates that programs strive to achieve the objectives in a number of ways. First, CJPP programs protect the public by addressing the needs of a high-risk offender population, which includes a heavy concentration of felons and offenders required to participate in CJPP as a result of a violation or the use of a probation officer's delegated authority. Second, CJPP promotes compliance as evidenced by the fact that the revocation rate is only slightly higher than the rate for other intermediate sanctions--despite the fact that many CJPP offenders already are engaged in the violation process or have demonstrated noncompliant behavior in other ways. Finally, the analysis indicates that offenders are more likely to succeed if they successfully complete CJPP programs such as cognitive behavioral intervention, life skills, substance abuse treatment and education.

7. Standards Evaluation

In 2002, DCC developed minimum program standards for all programs that receive CJPP funding. The standards are based on best practices and available scientific research indicating what works the best in correctional programs to achieve behavioral change. Since implementation, the DCC staff has completed quality assurance reviews of all participating programs to determine compliance with the minimum program standards. For FY 2009-2010, the results continue to show that the majority of the programs meet the minimum standards.

8. Program Descriptions, Service Providers and Provider Funding Amounts

Each of the CJPP programs provides a variety of services designed to meet offender needs. Providers of these services vary by location, depending on the program type and county resources. In many programs, the use of in-kind services is utilized when possible, and the program staff often is certified to provide services as well. DCC probation officers also assist in providing direct services to offenders, such as assisting with cognitive behavior intervention classes. Contractual service providers are utilized in many areas as well. The service provider contracts are included as a part of the application for the continuation of implementation funding on an annual basis. Each local program is responsible for maintenance of the provider contract details. For FY 2009-2010, contractual expenditures represented 63% of the total expenditures.

Appendix E provides the listing of the contract service providers and the associated funding for their services.

Summary

CJPP programs continued to improve service delivery during FY 2009-2010 with a focus on ensuring that evidence-based practices were implemented and delivered to the targeted offender population. DCC began providing training on evidence based practices and encouraged CJPP program staff to attend. CJPP programs will continue to improve as DCC's risk/needs instrument becomes fully operational with the appropriate referrals in each program. The annual review of the data and comparative analysis of the programs continues to indicate that the programs are meeting the affirmed goals. While there are differences in the programs and in their levels of success, DCC provides assistance to enable continued improvement in offender outcomes for this extremely valuable resource. In this time of budget shortfalls, CJPP remains one of the only available resources in our counties where offenders are able to receive the treatment and services they need to stay focused on leading productive lives. CJPP represents a partnership between the state, counties, and various treatment, education and vocational providers working jointly to effect positive behavioral change in the thinking, motivation, and actions of criminal offenders.

FY 2009-2010
CJPP Annual Report

January 2011

Analysis of CJPP Offender Participation Data
Received During Fiscal Year 2009-2010

Data Sources for this Report

CJPP local programs store data in and report data from a computer system called the CJPP Information Management System (IMS). The data was extracted from the IMS system as of November 6, 2010. Data for participants in the Sentenced Offender programs was also obtained from the Department of Correction's Offender Population Unified System (OPUS) as of November 6, 2010.

Map of Counties with CJPP Programs

The map below shows the North Carolina counties that are served by a CJPP funded sentenced offender program, and the type of program available (Day Reporting Center, Satellite Substance Abuse program, or Resource Center):

CJPP Sentenced Offender Program Outcome Measures

In 2004 the Division of Community Corrections and representatives from the Criminal Justice Partnership State Advisory Board and the Criminal Justice Partnership Local Advisory Boards identified outcome measures to assess program performance of types of programs. They identified three objectives: protect the public, maintain compliance, and improve offender behavior. For each objective they identified intermediate outcomes, which were refined in 2007. The cohort for all outcome measures is offenders who were in the CJPP program for at least one day during the evaluation period (beginning population + entries), who participated in the program at least 30 days, and have subsequently exited the program.
