INTRODUCTION

The Legislative Research Commission, authorized by Article 6B of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes, is a general purpose study group. The Commission is cochaired by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and has five additional members appointed from each house of the General Assembly. Among the Commission's duties is that of making or causing to be made, upon the direction of the General Assembly, "such studies of and investigation into governmental agencies and institutions and matters of public policy as will aid the General Assembly in performing its duties in the most efficient and effective manner" [G.S. 120-30.17(1)].

At the direction of the 1985 General Assembly, the Legislative Research Commission has undertaken studies of numerous subjects. These studies were grouped into broad categories and each member of the Commission was given responsibility for one category of study. The co-chairmen of the Legislative Research Commission, under the authority of General Statute 120-30.10(b) and (c), appointed committees consisting of members of the General Assembly and the public to conduct the studies. Co-chairmen, one from each house of the General Assembly, were designated for each Committee.

The study of State investments with South African investors was authorized by Section 2.1 of Chapter 790 of the 1985 Session

Laws. That act states that the Commission may consider the original bill proposing a study of these investments, House Bill 744 (1985), in determining the nature, scope, and aspects of the study. However, the scope of House Bill 744 does not limit the scope of the study committee, acting pursuant to Chapter 790(2.1).

The Legislative Research Commission grouped this study in its State Government area under the direction of Representative Christopher Barker, Jr. The Committee, whose membership is listed in Appendix A, was chaired by Senator J. Richard Conder and Representative H.M. Michaux, Jr.

BACKGROUND ON SOUTH AFRICA AND SOUTH AFRICAN DIVESTMENT LEGISLATION

Overview: The Republic of South Africa is a country of approximately thirty million people located at the southern end of the African continent. Including the ten Bantu "homelands," South Africa covers over 470,000 square miles, roughly nine times the size of North Carolina. (See Appendix J).

The population of South Africa is divided by the South African government into four groups:

Africans (blacks)	22.0 million
Coloureds (mixed race)	2.6
Indians	.8
Whites	4.5

The Bantu homelands are land reserves where black South Africans reside. Currently, four of the ten homelands are officially recognized by the South African Government (but not by any other country) as independent, sovereign states. Residents of the homelands are not considered South African citizens.

History: The Dutch originally settled what is now the Cape Town area of South Africa in the 1600's, but the British began colonizing the area in the late 1700's. As the British and other European settlers continued to spread into areas occupied by native Africans, separate communities for whites and native Africans developed, with land reserves set aside for the Africans.

South Africa attained national autonomy in 1936. The white electorate approved a republican form of government for South Africa in 1960, and the country officially became a republic in 1961.

Since that time, there have been periods of riots and demonstrations against apartheid (also referred to as "separate development" by the South African government). The first major protest, considered to be the beginning of violent resistance to apartheid, came in 1960 against the "pass laws," laws which required blacks to carry passports with them, enabling the government to restrict their movement into the urban areas. The government introduced even more stringent controls in response to the protests and riots.

The next major outbreak of violence, the Soweto riots, occurred in 1976 in response to the government's requirement that the Afrikaans language (rather than English, the other official language) be taught and used in schools. During both the 1960 and 1976 riots, a large number of blacks were killed.

Protests, demonstrations, and riots against apartheid have continued into the 1980's. The 1984 government reform that gave coloureds and asians, but not blacks, representation in the parliament touched off heavy protests, leading to more violence and deaths.

Government: South Africa is governed by a tricameral (three-house) parliament, one house each for whites, coloureds and asians. Representation among the houses is based upon population of these ethnic groups. To date, blacks have no representation in parliament and do not vote for the members of the parliament. The four black independent homeland "states" govern themselves, although no country other than South Africa recognizes these homelands as sovereign states.

Reforms: There have been some reforms made to soften apartheid laws in South Africa during the last few years. Among the reforms that have been made include an end to the ban on interracial marriages, legalization of black residence in urban areas, legalization of black trade unions, allowing black-owned businesses to operate in urban areas, and the elimination of pass laws. However, the South African government continues to require racially-segregated facilities and to deny blacks the right to vote.

Divestment and Corporate Withdrawal: The notion of requiring or encouraging investors to divest their holdings from companies doing business in South Africa is not a new idea. The American Committee on Africa, for example, adopted a policy calling for divestment and sanctions against South Africa in the late 1950's. The purpose of divestment from companies doing business in South Africa is to exert pressure on the companies to withdraw from the country. The withdrawal of the companies is designed, in turn, to create economic pressure on the South African government that will eventually lead the government to introduce the desired political reforms. There is disagreement and much debate whether divestment will, in fact, trigger this chain of events.

A large number of American companies have left South Africa. In 1983, there were approximately 350 American companies doing business in South Africa. Within the last two years, however, over 70 big American companies have pulled out of or announced their intention to leave South Africa. (See Appendix I regarding 1986 withdrawals). On consecutive days in October, 1986, for example, General Motors and IBM decided to sell their South African operations. General Motors, which had operated in South Africa for sixty years, had not shown profits from its South African operations since 1982. Lack of profits, political unrest and violence, dissatisfaction with the pace of government reform in South Africa, new Congressional legislation and sanctions, and uncertainty about the future in South Africa are among the reasons cited by companies for withdrawing from South Africa. According to some articles, divestment legislation enacted by numerous states and cities in the United States have also influenced corporate decisions to withdraw, although such legislation has not been the sole factor in these decisions. (Time, Nov. 3, 1986, pp. 32-34).

Many of the companies that are "withdrawing" from South Africa are actually continuing to do business there through licensing and sales arrangements. General Motors and IBM, for example, are selling their operations to local businessmen in South Africa at very low prices, but will continue to make their goods and technology available to South Africa. Although the local businessmen who purchase the companies are usually white South Africans, some departing companies, such as Coca-Cola, have attempted to sell out to black-owned businesses. (Time, Nov. 3, 1986, p. 34).

American investment in South Africa currently amounts to approximately $1.3 billion. Employment at the approximately 270 companies still in South Africa exceeds 120,000. Only 18 of these companies employ 1,000 or more workers. American investment in South Africa represents 17% of total foreign investment in the country -- less than the investments of Britain and West Germany. (U.S. News and World Report, June 30, 1986, p. 29).

Divestment Legislation: Divestment did not become a major issue until the early 1980's. Connecticut, in 1982, enacted the first state divestment legislation targeted at companies doing business in or with the Republic of South Africa. Since that time, numerous states and cities have considered and many have enacted laws requiring the divestment of specified public funds from companies doing business in or with the Republic of South Africa. Approximately twenty states now have some form of divestment legislation or policy regarding South Africa. (See Appendix C).

Many of the states' divestment laws fall into one of the following two categories:

- (a) divestment is required from those companies that have not signed the Sullivan Principles; or
- (b) divestment is required from those companies that have not received desirable performance ratings under the Sullivan Principles.

The Sullivan Principles are a voluntary code of conduct that a company doing business in South Africa may choose to follow. The Principles were first established in 1976 by the Rev. Leon Sullivan of Philadelphia. The Sullivan Principles are as follows:

- (1) Nonsegregation of the Races in All Eating, Comfort, Locker Rooms, and Work Facilities;
- (2) Equal and fair employment practices for all employees;
- (3) Equal pay for all employees doing equal or comparable work for the same period of time;
- (4) Initiation and development of training programs that will prepare blacks, coloureds, and asians in substantial numbers for supervisory, administrative, clerical and technical jobs;
- (5) Increasing the number of blacks, coloureds, and asians in management and supervisory positions; and
- (6) Improving the quality of employees' lives outside the work environment in such areas as housing, transportation, schooling, recreation and health facilities.

Companies that have signed an agreement to abide by the Sullivan Principles are rated on their performance in implementing the Principles. A participating company may receive one of three ratings. A "passing" rate is a rating of either I ("Making Good Progress") or II ("Making Progress"). A rating of III is failing. The divestment laws in some states require the company not only to sign the Sullivan Principles, but to also obtain one of the two passing ratings.

The ratings for each company and how they were determined are published annually in a report by the Arthur D. Little Company, and distributed by the International Council for Equality of Opportunity Principles, Inc. (See Appendix F for the Ninth report). The Tenth Report will probably be released in December, 1986).

Only a small number of American companies in South Africa have not signed the Sullivan Principles. Most of the companies that have signed are also receiving passing rates each year.

Divestment is also a big issue on college campuses nationwide. In North Carolina, several universities, amid student demonstrations, have been examining their investments in companies doing business in South Africa. Most began examining their investments even before the formation of the LRC Committee on State Infrastructure Needs began its study. Very few of the universities' boards of trustees have voted to divest their universities' holdings in companies doing business in South Africa. (See Appendix D for a survey of the divestment activities of the constituent institutions of the University of North Carolina).

The most recent divestment action of the UNC campuses was the announcement by the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill that it would divest its holdings in four companies that are conducting substantial business with the South African government. The Board refused to require full divestiture.

Other State Legislation: Divestment is not the only legislative response to apartheid in South Africa. Several cities and some states have considered and enacted "procurement restrictions" whereby the state or local government purchasing agency is prohibited from procuring goods manufactured in or shipped from South Africa.

A few governments have gone even further and prohibit government purchases from any company doing business in South Africa even if the company's goods are manufactured in the United States. At the time of this report, some states were also considering approaches such as denying state corporate tax benefits to companies doing business in South Africa and in the particular state.

Federal Legislation: The most comprehensive legislation to date is the Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act of 1986, an act passed by Congress. Although vetoed by the President, the House and Senate successfully overrode the veto. The Anti-Apartheid Act prohibits new investments in and loans to South Africa, denies landing rights in the United States to South African Airways, prohibits the import of certain minerals and other products from South Africa, and prohibits the export from the United States to the South African government of certain goods, such as computers and nuclear technology. The Act also establishes a mandatory "Code of Conduct," nearly identical to the Sullivan Principles, to be followed by companies doing business in South Africa with more than 25 employees. Unlike the other provisions of the Act, however, no penalty can be enforced against a company that fails to abide by the Code of Conduct. Thus, the Code of Conduct is essentially unenforceable. COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS

The Committee held three meetings during 1986: January 10th, April 18th, and December 1st. No meetings were held during 1985 and no interim report was issued to the 1986 session of the General Assembly.

January 10, 1986

The January 10th meeting was primarily an organizational meeting. Representative Chris Barker, the LRC member with oversight responsibility for the Committee, presented some opening remarks in which he stated his belief that divestment and the withdrawal of American business from South Africa would open the door to communism in the country and lead to an economic collapse. The Committee Counsel, Mr. Linwood Jones, then briefly spoke to the Committee about House Bill 744, the divestment bill with which the Committee would begin its work. Mr. Jones also discussed the divestment activities of the constituent institutions of the University of North Carolina. The Boards of Trustees at many of these universities had for some time been considering divestment of their endowment funds from companies doing business in South Africa. (See Appendix D).

Mr. Jones pointed out that House Bill 744 would require divestment of certain state pension funds and university trust funds, each held and invested by the State Treasurer, from companies doing business in or with the Republic of South Africa. The divestment requirement would also apply to financial institutions with loans outstanding to the Republic of South Africa. Divestment would take place over a three-year period. Mr. Jones distinguished the university trust funds held by the State Treasurer from the university endowment funds held by the boards of trustees of the various universities. House Bill 744 does not affect the university endowment funds, although, as mentioned above, the universities' boards of trustees have been considering divestment of their funds.

Senator Conder pointed out that Wake Forest University, a private institution, had recently adopted a position paper opposing the divestment of the school's endowment funds.

In response to questions from Committee members, Mr. John Morrissey, Special Counsel to the State Treasurer, discussed an earlier memorandum (dated May 24, 1985) from the Treasurer's Office outlining the fiscal impact of divestment legislation on North Carolina's investment portfolio. The memorandum had been prepared when House Bill 744 was being discussed during the 1985 session of the General Assembly. (See Appendix E).

As of the end of the first quarter of 1985, the memo identified 61 companies doing business in or with South Africa in which the State had investments. Of these 61 companies, all but 10 had signed the Sullivan Principles. According to the memo, divestment would involve assets equaling $734,300,000 from the equity portfolio (35% of that portfolio) and $741,758,000 from the bond portfolio (16% of the bond portfolio). The sale of these assets and the purchase of replacement assets would cost the State an estimated $14 million in brokerage charges. The memo also estimated that it would cost the State an additional $406,317,000 to replace the assets and maintain the same cash flow.

April 18, 1986

At the April 18th meeting, State Treasurer Harlan Boyles addressed the Committee, speaking in opposition to divestment of state funds from companies in the State's investment portfolio. The Treasurer's office provided the Committee with an updated version of the May 24, 1985 memo. The new memo (dated March 10, 1986) estimated that nearly $770,000,000 million in the equity portfolio and $947,000,000 in the bond portfolio would be divested if House Bill 744 had been enacted on the last day of the fourth quarter in 1985. (See Appendix D). The memo also estimated the following costs to the State for divestiture:

$ 3,106,904	Brokerage charges (stocks)
3,044,150	Brokerage charges (bonds)
541,200,000	Replacement costs
65,000,000	Market yield "give-up"
$ 612,351,054	Total Cost

The changes in the estimates from the original memo were caused primarily by two factors. First, the State's investment portfolio is actively managed -- thus, the State does not have investments in the same companies each quarter. Second, many of the companies doing business in South Africa are withdrawing, and many companies that originally failed or refused to sign the Sullivan Principles are now signatories to the Principles. (See Appendix I concerning companies withdrawing in 1986 from South Africa).

The Committee was also presented with a September 26, 1985 memo from the Treasurer's Office identifying NCNB and BankAmerican Corporation as the only two financial institutions (as of 1985) which had outstanding loans to South Africa and in which the Treasurer's Office held investments.

Representative Michaux discussed Connecticut's divestment legislation, which requires the divestment of state pension funds from companies doing business in South Africa unless the companies have received a rating of I or II (passing rates) under the Sullivan Principles rating system.

Mr. Jones, the Committee Counsel, explained the Sullivan Principles and the different ratings to the Committee. Representative Michaux moved and the Committee agreed to have the Committee Counsel draft proposed legislation requiring divestment of state pension and university trust funds from companies doing business in or with South Africa and financial institutions with outstanding loans to South Africa unless the company or financial institution is a signatory to the Sullivan Principles. The proposed legislation would not require the company to achieve passing ratings under the Principles. All other provisions of the original bill (HB 744), such as spreading the sale of divested assets over three years, were to be left intact.

December 1, 1986

The Committee held its final meeting on December 1, 1986. Mr. Jones, Committee Counsel, briefly explained the contents of the final report submitted to the Committee. A draft bill requiring divestment from companies that had not signed the Sullivan Principles was distributed to the members for consideration. Senator Martin moved and the Committee approved the addition of language to the draft bill that would require divestment from companies unless they signed the Sullivan Principles AND achieved an acceptable performance rating in the top two categories of the Sullivan Principles ratings. The addition was to be patterned after the Iowa and Connecticut legislation, with Counsel to draft the language primarily from the Connecticut legislation.

Representative Michaux, in response to concerns raised by Representative Barker, stated that it was the intent of the bill to allow investments in those companies presently disqualified once they become qualified.

In response to a question from Senator Conder, Counsel noted that as of April, 1986, had the proposed bill become effective on that date, divestment would have been required from approximately five companies, four of which were receiving unacceptable performance ratings and one of which had not signed the Sullivan Principles. Senator Conder contacted the State Treasurer's Office during the meeting to update the impact of this legislation. The company that had not signed the Sullivan Principles in April had done so since that time and the State no longer held investments in one of the four companies that received unacceptable performances on the April list. However, it was unknown whether the remaining three had since received acceptable ratings or whether the State had since invested in other companies since April that might be disqualified.

Counsel and Representative Michaux estimated, however, that the number of companies disqualified from State investments would continue to remain low and might eventually fall to zero because of the accelerated pace of corporate withdrawals from South Africa and the fact that more and more of the remaining companies are signing the Sullivan Principles and receiving acceptable performance ratings.

The Committee approved the draft bill, as amended, and the final report unanimously.

FUNDS IN CERTAIN COMPANIES INVOLVED WITH SOUTH AFRICA.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 147-69.2 is amended by adding at the end a new subsection to read:

(1) a financial institution, as defined in G.S. 54B-4(b)(25), that has outstanding loans to the Republic of South Africa or its subdivisions or agencies unless the institution is a signatory to the Sullivan Principles and has attained a performance rating, if issued, for compliance with the Sullivan Principles in the top two categories as measured by Arthur D. Little, Inc., the official compliance monitor for the signatories to the Sullivan Principles.

(2) stocks, securities or other obligations of a company doing business in or with the Republic of South Africa or its subdivisions or agencies unless the company is a signatory to the Sullivan Principles and has attained a performance rating, if issued, for compliance with the Sullivan Principles in the top two categories as measured by Arthur D.

For the purposes of this section, the Sullivan Principles are a code of business practices relating to equal opportunities for black, coloured, and asian workers in South Africa, including but not limited to the following principles:

the annual report published by the International Council for Equality of Opportunity Principles, Inc., on the Signatory Companies to the Sullivan Principles, to the extent the report is available to the State Treasurer and contains current information.

Sec. 2. After July 1, 1987, no assets of the Retirement Systems listed in G.S. 147-69.2(b)(6), or of the trust funds of the University of North Carolina and its constituent institutions deposited with the State Treasurer pursuant to G.S. 116-36.1, may remain invested in:

(1) a financial institution, as defined in G.S. 54B-4(b)(25), that has outstanding loans to the Republic of South Africa or its subdivisions or agencies unless the institution is a signatory to the Sullivan Principles and has attained a performance rating, if issued, for compliance with the Sullivan Principles in the top two categories as measured by Arthur D. Little, Inc., the official compliance monitor of the signatories to the Sullivan Principles.

(2) stocks, securities, or other obligations of a company doing business in or with the republic of South Africa or its subdivisions or agencies unless the company is a signatory to the Sullivan Principles and has attained a performance rating, if issued, for compliance with the Sullivan Principles in the top two categories as measured by Arthur D. For the purposes of this act, the Sullivan Principles are a code of business practices relating to equal opportunities for black, coloured, and asian workers in South Africa, including but not limited to the following principles:

- (a) Nonsegregation of the races in all eating, comfort, locker rooms, and work facilities;

The State Treasurer shall determine which companies and financial institutions are signatories to the Sullivan Principles based on reliable, accurate, and current information, including the annual report published by the International Council for Equality of Opportunity Principles, Inc., on the Signatory Companies to the Sullivan Principles, to the extent the report is available to the State Treasurer and contains current information.

Provided, however, that if sound investment policy so requires, the State Treasurer may spread the sale of these investments over no more than three years as long as no less than one-third of the total value of the investments is sold in each of the first two years after July 1, 1987.

Sec. 3. This act shall become effective July 1, 1987.

EXPLANATION OF PROPOSED LEGISLATION

The bill proposed by the Committee on State Investments with South African Investors would, if enacted, require the State Treasurer to divest the State's pension and university trust funds from financial institutions with loans outstanding to the Republic of South Africa and from companies doing business in or with the Republic of South Africa UNLESS the company has signed the Sullivan Principles and has achieved a rating in the top two categories of the Sullivan Principles.

Sullivan Principles: The Sullivan Principles are a code of business practices relating to equal opportunities for black, coloured, and asian workers in South Africa, as follows:

- (a) Nonsegregation of the races in all eating, comfort, locker rooms, and work facilities;
- (b) Equal pay and fair employment practices for all employees;
- (c) Equal pay for all employees doing equal or comparable work for the same period of time;
- (d) Initiation and development of training programs that will prepare blacks, coloureds, and asians in substantial numbers for supervisory, administrative, clerical and technical jobs;
- (e) Increasing the number of blacks, coloureds, and asians

- in management and supervisory positions; and
- (f) Improving the quality of employees' lives outside the work environment in such areas as housing, transportation, schooling, recreation, and health facilities.

The Sullivan Principles were established in 1976 by the Rev. Leon Sullivan of Philadelphia. A company may indicate its desire to participate in these practices by signing the Sullivan Principles; participation by a company is completely voluntary. Rev. Sullivan's group, the International Council for Equality of Opportunity Principles, Inc., distributes a report during the fall of each year that lists the companies that have signed the Sullivan Principles and the progress they have made in adhering to the Principles. The progress made by each company is determined by the Arthur Little Co., Inc., a consulting firm to Rev. Sullivan's group, based on visits to the company's site in South Africa, observation of its activities, and questionnaires on the company's activities in implementing the Sullivan Principles.

Ratings: Each company is given one of five ratings: I, II, III, IV, or V. The ratings and their meanings are as follows:

- I. Making Good Progress in implementing the Principles
- II. Making Progress
- III. Needs to Become More Active
- IV. Endorses the Sullivan Principles, but has no employees or investments in South Africa
- V. New Signatories that are not required to report

A rating of "I" or "II" is considered an acceptable performance under the Sullivan Principles and would also be considered acceptable under the Committee's proposed bill. A rating of "III" is an unacceptable performance under the Sullivan Principles and would likewise be an unacceptable performance under the proposed bill. Category IV is not applicable to the proposed bill since the bill is concerned with companies actually doing business in or with the Republic of South Africa. Category V includes those companies that have just signed the Sullivan Principles and who are not required to report on their progress during their first year as a signatory to the Principles.

The proposed legislation, in requiring a company to receive a rating of "I" or "II" to prevent mandatory divestment, appears to require divestment from companies falling within Categories IV and V. However, as stated before, Category IV is inapplicable. Furthermore, divestment is not required for Category V companies because the bill requires a "top two" performance rating ("I" or "II") only if a performance rating has been issued for the company. Since a Category V rating is not a performance rating, but merely a rating to denote new signatories, divestment is not required from Category V companies.

It was the Committee's intent that the Treasurer be allowed to invest in a company not presently a signatory to the Sullivan Principles or not presently receiving a passing rating ("I" or "II") as soon as the Treasurer receives reliable information that the company has signed the Sullivan Principles and/or has received an acceptable performance rating, whichever is applicable. Thus, a company that signs the Sullivan Principles for the first-time in 1987 would be eligible for State investment without regard to its performance under the Sullivan Principles. Since a first-year signatory is not evaluated during its first year as a signatory, there is no way that anyone, including Arthur Little, will know whether the company's performance is acceptable. However, during the second year as a signatory, the company will automatically be removed from Category V and subjected to a performance evaluation. At that time, the company will receive either a "I", "II", or "III" rating and will be treated like all other companies receiving a similar rating.

It is difficult to pinpoint those companies in which the State has investments that would be affected by this legislation. This difficulty is caused by several factors. First, there have been numerous corporate withdrawals from South Africa. During the last two years, approximately 70 American companies have pulled out of South Africa, leaving roughly 270 U.S. companies as of December, 1986. The recently announced departures of GM and IBM are expected to accelerate the withdrawal of other American firms. Second, many companies have within the last year signed the Sullivan Principles or have achieved an acceptable performance rating. This information is published only once a year by the Arthur Little Co. and the International Council for Equality and Opportunity Principles. Since the 1986 (Tenth) report was not available during the Committee's deliberations, the information used by the Committee in putting together its report was based on information from the 1985 (Ninth) Report. Numerous changes in ratings and signatories will no doubt appear in the Tenth Report. Third, the State's pension and university trust funds are actively managed by the Treasurer -- i.e., the corporate composition of the investment portfolio changes continuously.

Although it is impossible to permanently identify the companies that would be affected by the bill, it is possible to identify the companies at a particular time. The particular time at which the Committee identified these companies was in April, 1986. The identification made in April was based mostly on information from the Ninth Annual Report (published October 25, 1985).

Had the proposed bill taken effect in April, 1986, divestment would have been required from the following companies for the following reasons. The number of shares of stock held by the State in each of these companies in April, 1986 and in October, 1986 (the most recent available data), is also listed.

Company	Reason for	No./Shares Held in 1986
	Divestment	April	October
Parker-Hannifin	Non-signatory	172,000	258,000
Borg-Warner	Category III	320,000	None
Monsanto	Category III	430,000	430,000
Raytheon	Category III	658,000	358,000
Tenneco	Category III	300,000	300,000

Thus, as of April, 1986, the State Treasurer would have been required to divest from these five companies until they signed the Sullivan Principles and, where applicable, achieved an acceptable performance rating. Divestment would also have been required from any financial institution with loans outstanding to the Republic of South Africa. To illustrate how rapidly the list changes, the Committee was informed at its December, 1986 meeting that Parker-Hannifin had since signed the Sullivan Principles and the State no longer held investments with Borg-Warner. It was unknown at the time of the December meeting whether the three other companies on the April list had received acceptable ratings in the interim or whether the State had since invested in other companies that would be disqualified under the proposed bill.

The number of companies disqualified from the State investment list is expected to remain low and perhaps reach zero by the effective date of the bill because of the rapid withdrawal of companies from South Africa and the fact that more companies are signing the Sullivan Principles and achieving acceptable performance ratings.

Sections 1 and 2: Sections 1 and 2 of the bill are nearly identical to each other. The only distinction between the two is that section 1 prohibits future investments in companies that are disqualified under the bill whereas section 2 requires divestment of existing investments in disqualified companies.

Funds Affected: The proposed bill affects two types of funds held for investment by the State Treasurer:

(1) State pension funds, which include the following assets:

- (a) Teachers and State Employees Retirement System
- (b) Uniform Judicial Retirement System
- (c) Uniform Solicitorial Retirement System
- (d) Uniform Clerks of Superior Court Retirement System
- (e) Firemen's and Rescue Workers' Pension Fund
- (f) Local Governmental Employees Retirement System
- (g) Law Enforcement Officers Benefit & Retirement Fund

(2) University trust funds, which include, among other things, federal and State grants, certain student fees, monies for scholarship funds and student activity funds, and gifts not intended as endowment monies.

The proposed bill does not apply to university endowment funds. Unlike trust funds, university endowment funds are held and invested by the boards of trustees of each of the sixteen constituent institutions of the University of North Carolina. The boards of trustees of many of the UNC schools have examined or are in the process of examining the investment of their endowment funds in companies doing business with South Africa.

3-Year Divestment Period: Like the original bill, HB 744, the proposed bill recommended by the Committee allows the State Treasurer to spread the sale of assets that must be divested over a three year period "if sound investment policy so requires." However, at least one-third of the value of these assets must be divested each year.

Three Versions Considered: The proposed piece of legislation is one of three that the Committee considered during its deliberations. The first version was House Bill 744, which would have required full divestment. The second version would have required divestment from those companies who fail to sign the Sullivan Principles. The proposed bill falls between these two earlier versions.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF NORTH CAROLINA
SESSION 1985

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION DRHJR2062-LC

Hi: 527

Sponsors: Representative Locks.

Referred to:

1 A JOINT RESOLUTION URGING NORTH CAROLINA CORPORATIONS TO END ALL
2 FINANCIAL INVOLVEMENT WITH SOUTH AFRICA..

3 Whereas, apartheid is the South African practice of 4 strict racial segregation of education, housing, and public
5 facilities; and

6 Whereas, the policy of apartheid, mandating both 7 segregation and white supremacy, means that the vast majority of 8 South Africans are governed by the sixteen percent (16%) of their 9 countrymen who are Caucasian; and

10 Whereas, the number of Black South Africans in poverty
11 rose from 4.9 million to 8.9 million between 1960 and 1980; and

12 Whereas, pay for Blacks averages one-eighth that of 13 white workers and at least one-quarter of black babies born in 14 rural areas die before their first birthday; and

15 Whereas, because Blacks do not have the right to vote,
16 the white minority controls the entire government, most 17 businesses, and eighty-seven percent (87%) of the land; and

18 Whereas, there is no free speech and opponents of 19 apartheid are silenced by South African law that allows 20

1 authorities to detain people indefinitely, cut off from family or 2 an attorney, without charging an offense; and

3 Whereas, Amnesty International reports that torture is 4 extensively inflicted on political detainees and the government
5 sanctions its use; and

6 Whereas, the South African government has forcibly
7 resettled more than 3,000,000 Africans, moving them from the 8 cities and more prosperous areas to rural, economically barren
9 "homelands"; and

10 Whereas, although Blacks make up seventy-two percent
11 (72%) of the population of South Africa, the "homelands" where 12 they must settle constitute only thirteen percent (13%) of the 13 land; and

14 Whereas, black workers who find employment in the cities
15 are forced to leave their families in the "homelands", visiting 16 them only once a year; and

17 Whereas, several hundred U.S. corporations supply
18 capital, technology, and equipment to South Africa; and

19 Whereas, U.S. financial involvement in South Africa
20 amounts to fourteen billion dollars ($14,000,000,000); and

21 Whereas, American involvement is particularly heavy in 22 sectors such as mining, computers, and transportation, crucial to 23 the survival of the white minority rulers, and all foreign 24 companies are required to adhere to racially discriminatory laws
25 and must cooperate with the current government in cases of civil 26 unrest; and

27 Whereas, foreign investment supports the present
28 economic system of political injustice; and

1 Whereas, according to a U.S. Senate report, "The net
2 effect of American investment has been to strengthen the economic
3 and military self-sufficiency of South Africa's apartheid
4 regime."; and

5 Whereas, loans by American banks totalling three billion
6 dollars ($3,000,000,000) also help preserve South Africa's 7 unstable economy; foreign lending allows the apartheid government
8 to concentrate domestic resources on strengthening its internal 9 security apparatus and conducting military operations against 10 neighboring Black-governed states; and

11 Whereas, divestment is the only effective way to prod
12 South Africa's rulers to enact significant reforms; without 13 foreign corporate and bank dollars to mask its weakness, South
14 Africa would be forced to confront the fundamental flaws in its 15 system and to reassess its elaborate system of repression in 16 light of the loss of high technology capital resources provided
17 by U.S. firms; and

18 Whereas, despite a South African law punishing by up to 19 twenty years imprisonment anyone who advocates divestment, the 20 100,000-member Federation of South African Trade Unions supports 21 divestment; and

22 Whereas, Bishop Desmond Tutu, winner of the 1984 Nobel 23 Peace Prize, favors foreign economic pressure to force political 24 change in South Africa; and

25 Whereas, five states and the District of Columbia have 26 enacted legislation restricting or forbidding investment of 27 public funds in companies that do business in South Africa; and 28

1 Whereas, 24 other states are considering similar
2 legislation;

3 Now, therefore, be it resolved by the House of Representatives,
4 the Senate concurring:

5 Section 1. The North Carolina General Assembly urges
6 all North Carolina corporations to withdraw all investments and 7 loans from South Africa and to end all financial involvement with 8 South Africa until all vestiges of apartheid are eliminated..

APPENDIX C

STATE STATUTORY RESTRICTIONS ON PUBLIC INVESTMENTS
IN COMPANIES DOING BUSINESS IN SOUTH AFRICA

CONNECTICUT (Connecticut General Statutes, Chapter 32, Section 3-13f)

Public Act 82-324 requires the State Treasurer to divest, within a reasonable period of time, all state funds currently invested in any corporation doing business in the Republic of South Africa. The law further provides that no new state funds can be invested in any corporation after the effective date of the law unless the company meets the following conditions:

- a) adoption of the Sullivan Principles (a code of business practices relating to equal opportunities for black workers in South Africa promulgated by Reverend Leon H. Sullivan);
- b) attainment of a performance rating for compliance with the Sullivan principles in the top two categories as measured by Arthur D. Little, Inc. (the official compliance monitor);
- c) refusal to supply strategic products or services to the government of South Africa for its use or for use by the military or police in that country; and
- d) recognition of the right of all South African employees to organize and to strike in support of economic or social objectives, free from the fear of dismissal or blacklisting.

For the purposes of this law, the term "doing business in South Africa" includes not only those companies "conducting or performing manufacturing, assembly, or warehousing operations," but also "lending money to the Republic of South Africa or any agency or instrumentality thereof" in the case of a bank or other financial institution.

MICHIGAN (Michigan Compiled Laws Annotated, Section 21.145)

To be a depository of surplus funds belonging to the state, a bank chartered under the laws of the state or the United States shall not encourage or condone legally required discrimination against an individual on the basis of race or color, by knowingly making or maintaining a loan to the Republic of South Africa, a national corporation of the Republic of South Africa, or to a subsidiary or affiliate of an American firm operating in that country. A bank shall be considered to have complied with these requirements if it filed with the Commissioner of the Financial Institutions Bureau an affidavit attesting to the fact that it has no existing loans to these prohibited entities in force after July 4, 1982.

A corporation, or a subsidiary or affiliate of a corporation, that is more than 50 percent owned or operated by the government of the Republic of South Africa shall be deemed a "national corporation" for purposes of this law. "Subsidiaries or affiliates" however, means only those firms incorporated under the laws of the Republic of South Africa, domiciled in that nation, and controlled by a U.S. firm. It does not mean a subsidiary or affiliate located in the United States.

MICHIGAN (Michigan Compiled Laws, Section 37.2402)

Effective April 1, 1984, the State of Michigan prohibited public institutions of higher education from "knowingly making or maintaining" an investment in any United States' firms or any subsidiary or affiliate of a United States' firm in South Africa.

As defined in this section, "investment" means only "money placed in shares of stocks and other equity interests," not bank deposits made in the ordinary course of business.

MASSACHUSETTS (Massachusetts General Laws Annotated, Chapter 32, Section 23 (1)(d)(vi))

State law prohibits the State Treasurer from maintaining public employee pension funds in any bank or financial institution which directly, or through its subsidiaries, has outstanding loans to the Republic of South Africa or its instrumentalities (effective January 1, 1983). This statute, which affects funds of the State Employees', Teachers', and Massachusetts Turnpike Authority Employees' Retirement Systems, also barred as of the same date continued investment in the "stocks, securities or other obligations of any company doing business in or with the Republic of South Africa."

MASSACHUSETTS (1986 Massachusetts Acts, Chapter 233)

Industrial development bonds may not be issued for a project if the sponsor does business in the Republic of South Africa.

MARYLAND (Maryland Annotated Code, Article 95, Section 21)

Since the beginning of 1985, a statutory prohibition has been in force which bans the deposit of state funds in any financial institution unless that institution certifies in writing to the Treasurer "that it has no direct loans or foreknowledge of any indirect loans" outstanding to any unit of government or any national corporation of the Republic of South Africa. Direct or indirect loans outstanding prior to January 1, 1985, are not covered by this statute.

MARYLAND (Maryland Annotated Code, Article 73B, Section 161(1))

The Board of Trustees for the Maryland State Retirement and Pension System, under the guidelines of this law, must require its external investment managers to avoid any new investments in any stock, security or other obligation in any company that does business in or with the Republic of South Africa. This restriction applies from July 1, 1985 to June 30, 1987 and further covers only new investments from net new funds.

Companies which are signatories to the Sullivan Principles and which are making "progress or good progress" toward implementation are exempt from the reach of these restraints.

In addition to the aforementioned requirements, the Board must "directly encourage, and vote proxies in favor of resolutions requiring, the corporations in which the systems have an ownership interest to agree to abide by, implement and demonstrate that the corporation at a minimum is making progress" or implementing the Sullivan Principles.

During this two-year period, the Board must also establish a data base system for collection of pertinent information on the effect of this investment prohibition on the performance of the System's portfolio.

Finally, the law directs the Governor to appoint a task force by July 1, 1987 which will receive the data collected by the Board, and assess the impact of this investment restriction. A report of the task force's findings must be forwarded to the governor and the General Assembly by December 31, 1987.

MARYLAND (1986 Maryland Laws, Chapter 666)

A state agency may not knowingly procure any finished supplies that have been produced or manufactured in the Republic of South Africa after January 1987.

The law provides for two exceptions to these restrictions. First, if the agency head states in writing that the procurement is essential and no other available source is known to the agency which will provide the supplies at a reasonable cost. A second exception applies in the case of procurements over $100,000 solicited by the state. To receive this exemption, each bidder must certify to the state at the time of the contract award that (1) it is not doing business with or in South Africa; or (2) its operations in South Africa comply with the Sullivan Principles. Willful violation of these requirements or misrepresentation of information contained in the certificate constitutes a misdemeanor. Conviction of this offense is punishable by a fine not to exceed $1,000 or imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months.

For the purposes of this statute, "doing business in or with South Africa" means:

- 1) having any operations or a majority owned subsidiary in the country which employs more than 20 employees;
- 2) providing financial services to the government of South Africa, including providing direct loans, underwriting government securities, or promoting the sale of gold coins from that nation; or
- 3) providing any supplies or services to the South African government, except supplies or services provided for an educational, medical, charitable or religious purpose.

Specifically excluded from the meaning of this term, however, are companies or persons who are completing a limited consulting contract in existence on the date of enactment of this law. Furthermore, that contract must have been entered into as a result of the company divesting itself of all business property and operations in South Africa.

IOWA (Iowa Code, Section 12A.1 et seq.)

Funds under the control of the State Treasurer and the State Board of Regents, as well as monies in the Iowa public employee retirement fund, cannot be invested or deposited after June 30, 1985, in any financial institution which has a loan outstanding to the Republic of South Africa. Moreover, investments in the stocks, securities, or other obligations of such financial institutions or any company doing business in or with the Republic are also prohibited. These restrictions do not apply, however, to any company which has adopted the Sullivan Principles and has been ranked in categories one, two, four or five; or to any company which has been a Sullivan signatory for at least five years and has obtained a performance rating in the top two categories during four of the past five years.

Not only are new investments forbidden, the state must also divest itself of securities and other investments in such institutions and corporations by July 1, 1990. At least one fourth of the value of the investments held on July 1, 1985, must be sold beginning on July 1, 1988, unless the General Assembly determines that "substantial and fundamental progress" has occurred in establishing human rights policies in the Republic.

RHODE ISLAND (Rhode Island General Laws, Chapter 35-10)

Over the four year period beginning July 1, 1985, Public Law 85-336 requires the divestment of state monies and pension funds which, as of that date, are invested in any financial institution lending money to or any corporation doing business in the Republic of South Africa. In addition, no new investments will be allowed after July 1, 1985, in the financial institutions loaning money or the companies doing business in, or with, the Republic. A nine-member commission, composed of legislators and public citizens, will oversee the divestment program.

Notwithstanding this directive, divestment is not required if sales "would not be in accordance with such action as prudent individuals of discretion and intelligence in such matters, who are seeking a reasonable income and the preservation of their capital, would take, or when the market value of the investments...is lower than the purchase price...."

After July 1, no bank or trust company may serve as a depository of state funds if it provides to the Republic of South Africa, either directly or through a subsidiary or agent, the following services:

- a) the sale, advertising or promotion of the sale of krugerrands, or any other coins minted in South Africa;

- b) the underwriting of securities; or
- c) the making of new loans to the government or private sector, other than loans for certain educational, housing or health facilities.

Furthermore, no state department, agency, authority or instrumentality may purchase any good known to be wholly produced in South Africa.

NEBRASKA (Nebraska Revised Statutes, Section 72-1270 et seq.)

Acting on a broader scale, Nebraska lawmakers banned several types of state investment activity. Legislation enacted in that state prohibited continued public investment in the stocks of any financial institution which, directly or through its subsidiaries, had outstanding loans to the South African government or its instrumentalities as of January 1, 1985. Divestment could have been avoided if, by July 1, 1984, the financial institution adopted a formal South African investment policy which included:

- a) a complete listing of any outstanding South African public sector loans and the purposes for which such loans were made;
- b) the amortization schedule for such loans; and
- c) a public commitment not to renew any existing loans or make any new loans to the South African public sector.

If at any time in the future the institution adopts such a policy, reinvestment of public funds could occur.

In addition to these restrictions, the 1984 law halts investment of state funds in the bonds of any financial institution which, directly or through its subsidiaries, has outstanding loans to the South African government or in the bonds of any corporation doing business in or with the Republic of South Africa, effective January 1, 1985. New state investments in the bonds of any financial institution would be allowed when an institution met the three criteria described in paragraph one.

New investments in corporation bonds would be authorized, however, if the company "has agreed to abide by, is implementing, and demonstrates that it is making good progress in implementing the Sullivan Principles which call for:

- a) nonsegregation of the races in all eating, comfort, and work facilities;
- b) equal and fair employment practices for all employees;
- c) equal pay for all employees doing equal or comparable work for the same period of time;
- d) initiation and development of training programs that will prepare substantial numbers of black and other nonwhite persons for supervisory, administrative, clerical, and technical jobs;
- e) representation of black and other nonwhite persons in management and supervisory positions in a proportion equal to their percentage of the total population; and
- f) improvement in the quality of employees' lives outside the work environment including, but not limited to, the areas of housing, transportation, education, recreation and health care."

As of January 1, 1987, financial institutions or corporations doing business in South Africa must meet the criteria just discussed or also face divestment of state funds invested in their stocks.

LOUISIANA (Louisiana Revised Statutes, Section 49:309.1)

After January 1, 1986, the Treasurer may no longer make any deposit of state funds in an institution unless that bank, trust company, savings and loan association, or building and loan association has certified to him, in writing, that it has no direct loans or knowledge of any indirect loans outstanding to any unit of the government of the Republic of South Africa or any national corporation of that country. Loans outstanding on the effective date of this Act are not affected by this prohibition.

LOUISIANA (1986 Louisiana Public Acts, Public Act 896)

Under the guidelines of this new legislation, investor-owned public utilities will be prohibited from providing the Republic of South Africa, its instrumentalities, or any private or public company doing business in or with the government of that nation, with nuclear or alternate energy technologies. Furthermore, they will be barred from importing uranium from that nation or any private or public company doing business in South Africa.

NEW JERSEY (New Jersey Statutes Annotated, Section 52:18A-89.1 et. seq)

This new law halts the investment of pension or annuity funds in any financial institution which, directly or through its subsidiary, has outstanding loans to the Republic of South Africa or its instrumentalities, or in the stocks, securities, or other obligations of any company engaged in business in or with the Republic. Existing investments must be divested within three years of the enactment of this legislation.

VERMONT (1986 Vermont Acts, Act 246)

Newly enacted legislation prohibits the state from investing or depositing public funds under the control and custody of the state treasurer in any bank or financial institution which has deposits from, or outstanding loans to or in, the Republic of South Africa. Furthermore, the law states that no public assets under the control and custody of the treasurer shall remain or be invested in the stocks, securities or other obligations of any company doing business in or with South Africa. Included within the reach of these restraints are all:

- 1) general state funds which are temporarily invested;
- 2) monies being held for safekeeping for departments and agencies; and
- 3) funds held for safekeeping for individuals.

To assist in the implementation of this law, each bank in the state which has state deposits or investments will be required to submit annually to the treasurer a statement certifying that it does not have any deposits from, or outstanding loans to or in, the Republic of South Africa. Non-bank financial institutions and other companies, their affiliates and subsidiaries, in which the state has deposits or investments will be required also to submit an annual statement to the treasurer certifying that they do not have any loans or investments in South Africa nor do they engage in trade with that country.

OKLAHOMA (Oklahoma Statutes Annotated, Title 61, Sections 71 and 89.2)

"On or after July 1, 1987, no public funds or monies subject to the control of the State Treasurer shall remain deposited (or invested) in any bank or financial institution which directly or through its subsidiaries has outstanding loans to the Republic of South Africa or its instrumentalities."

FLORIDA (Florida Statutes Annotated, Section 215.47(11))

The Board of Administration, which invests state retirement funds and other monies, may not "buy any obligation or security of any South African corporation or of any South African government-owned corporation or of the South African government."

CALIFORNIA (1986 California Statutes, Chapter 1254)

The latest state law relating to South African investments would prohibit the use of state trust monies for additional or new investments or any renewed investments in any business firm that has business operations or arrangements with the government of South Africa, effective January 1, 1987. On that same date, similar investments would be barred in any financial institutions that make loans to any South African corporation or to the government of South Africa.

These restrictions would not apply, however, to any business or financial institution that, by resolution of its governing body, adopts a policy to not expand existing, or establish new, business operations; or to renew existing business arrangements, or loans; and to not make any additional or new business arrangements, or loans, in South Africa, or with the government of that country, or to any South African corporation. The prohibitions would not apply as well to any financial institution which renews existing loans or makes additional or new loans to any South African corporation or to the government of South Africa only to the extent necessary or appropriate to facilitate repayment of loans or other credits committed or provided before January 1, 1987.

Beginning January 1, 1988 and through January 1, 1991, state trust funds would be required to reduce annually by one-third their respective investments in business firms with business operations in South Africa or business arrangements with the government of that country and in financial institutions making or increasing loans or other extensions of credit to the South African government or any South African corporation.

After January 1, 1987, state monies may not be invested in any business nor deposited with any financial institution described above.

Present, future and former members of the governing board of any trust fund; present, future and former Regents of the University of California; officers and employees of the state or the university; and investment managers under contract with the state or the university would be indemnified from the General Fund from all claims, demands, suits, actions, damages, judgments, and other costs, charges, and expenses sustained by them at any time by reason of a decision to restrict, reduce or eliminate investments in business firms with operations or arrangements in South Africa or investments in financial institutions extending credit to the government of South Africa or a South African corporation.

Dear Mr. Jones:

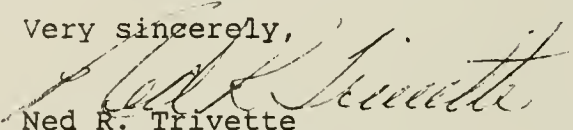

This is in response to your letter of November 13, 1985, relative to the study that is being conducted by the Legislative Research Commission in regard to investments in South Africa.

Appalachian State University maintains an Endowment Fund, the assets of which are made up totally of New River Light and Power Company and the University Bookstore, neither of which have a portfolio of investments. In addition to the A. S. U. Endowment Fund, there does exist the Appalachian State University Foundation, Inc., a separate entity from the University, the purpose of which is to provide a vehicle for private gifts to the University and in turn support for the University. The total assets of the Foundation as of October 31, 1985, are just over $7,800,000 of which approximately $4,500,000 is managed by investment advisors.

At the September meeting of the Board of Trustees of Appalachian State University, a request was made to the Board of Directors of the Foundation to review its portfolio with regard to substantive investments in firms doing business in South Africa. At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Foundation on Friday, November 15, 1985, the enclosed policy on social investment was approved and will be presented to the Board of Trustees of the University at its meeting on December 6, 1985.

We hope this information will be helpful in your study; and if we can provide additional material, please let us know.

Very sincerely,

POLICY ON SOCIAL INVESTING

Appalachian State University Foundation, Inc.

The Appalachian State University Foundation, Inc. recognizes the endowment and other funds of the Foundation as increasingly important sources of revenue for support of Appalachian State University. The continuing trend of financial needs suggests to the Foundation's Investments Advisory Committee that the proper investment objective should be to maximize the total return (appreciation and income), assuming a prudent and reasonable risk level. A goal of above average investment performance is desired.

The Foundation acknowledges the difficult, perhaps even impossible, task of attaining consistently above average returns from diversified portfolios, even if the historic trend of capital markets continue into future years. Nevertheless, the challenge of excellent performance seems likely to produce higher returns than results under a lesser stated goal.

The Foundation abhors the policy of apartheid which exists in South Africa and other social injustices, but its Board of Directors has a legal and moral obligation to manage the Foundation's assets so as to meet the needs of present and future generations of faculty and students. As guardians of the Foundation's financial resources the Board of Directors is governed by legal requirements to preserve those assets and manage them prudently. Thus the Board of Directors is not free to use the financial resources of the Foundation to promote social causes if doing so would conflict with its fiscal responsibilities.

The Foundation reaffirms its policy of seeking maximum long-term total return, combining appreciation and income, and in line with prudent and reasonable levels of investment risk.

Dear Mr. Jones:

Fayetteville State University is concerned about the possible disinvesting of state funds with South African investors and has examined our investments.

We concur with this posture. Our portfolio is very small and the extent of our investments are with local banks and an Investment Fund handled by Chase Manhattan. We have been informed that none of our investments are with South African investors.

Dear Mr. Jones:

This is in reference to your letter of November 13, 1985 on behalf of the N.C. School of the Arts, we have no indication currently that we have specifically invested in funds with South African business interests. All funds invested by entities within or related to the School are currently of a highly diluted and diversified nature within the State Treasury, pooled charitable funds and so on.

We are currently in the process of liquidating a majority of our Foundation funds in the hopes of pooling the funds and placing them with an investment firm. At the time this occurs, we will bring the matter of South African business interests to the board members so that we may address this situation with any counsel investment firm which we may select. We want to thank you again for your giving us the opportunity to make our comments.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the Board of Trustees of the Endowment Fund of North Carolina State University at Raleigh recognizes that its primary fiduciary responsibility is investing and managing the University's endowment in a manner that maximizes the return on those investments while it minimizes the amount of risk to which the endowment portfolio is subjected; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Trustees of the Endowment Fund also believes in the fundamental human rights of all people, including the right to enjoy full citizenship and equal opportunity in the economic, social, cultural and educational activities of their country; and

WHEREAS, the system of apartheid practiced in South Africa violates the basic human rights of the majority of its people to such a significant degree that the Board feels a moral obligation to exercise some judgments regarding investing in corporations that operate in South Africa; and

WHEREAS, the failure of such corporations to encourage the dismantling of the apartheid system not only contributes to the violation of human rights, but also jeopardizes the security of the corporations' operations in South Africa; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Trustees of the Endowment Fund genuinely desires to see improvements in the quality of life and employment of non-white South Africans; and

WHEREAS, the principles proposed by the Rev. Leon H. Sullivan in 1977, and amplified in 1979, have been generally acclaimed as promoting an equitable balance between the opposition to apartheid and the advocacy of economic progress for non-white South Africans;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Board of Trustees of the Endowment Fund of North Carolina State University at Raleigh recognizes the Sullivan Principles as a guide for determining a company's commitment to the advancement of citizenship and equality espoused above; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Treasurer and the Fiscal Agent, in applying the investment principles for the Endowment Fund's portfolio, will be guided by the Sullivan Principles and/or other appropriate corporate policies embodying the essence of the Sullivan Principles; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT divestiture of securities of corporations not willing to support the Sullivan Principles and/or other appropriate corporate policies embodying the essence of the Sullivan Principles will be achieved in an orderly and prudent manner.

Dear Mr. Jones:

In response to your letter of November 13, 1985, we are pleased to send you a brief history of South Africa considerations by our Endowment Board and some general comments.

Before addressing the specifics of South Africa investments, it is pertinent to review previous issues of "social investing." In the 1950s, many banks and insurance companies would not invest in "sin" stocks and bonds or companies with tobacco, alcohol, or gambling operations. Then pollution became an issue with divesting of "smokestack" companies. During the 1960s, companies making bombs and napalm were avoided. In each case, the investors received publicity, felt as if they were investing with a clear conscience, but had little impact on events. There is one significant difference between earlier social issues and divestiture in South Africa related-stocks—earlier issues dealt with a very small segment of the available investment securities so portfolio managers could invest with practically no constraints. With South Africa issues, however, approximately one-third of the S&P 500 stocks could be declared unavailable for investment.

There are two costs associated with divestiture—transaction cost and risk. Transaction costs are incurred whenever securities are purchased or sold. If stocks are sold and the proceeds reinvested, commissions are incurred on the sale and the subsequent purchase resulting in a one-time double commission charge on the transaction. The second cost represents risk or the potential reduction in return associated with a smaller list of investment alternatives. Indeed, with one-third of the stocks included in the Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index being excluded, the choice is dramatically reduced. In addition, several industry groups would be substantially eliminated from investment opportunity since many of the companies doing business in South Africa are concentrated in the same industries. By eliminating the larger, more stabilized companies, an investor is left with the smaller, less stable companies with more volatile earnings and stock prices (Attachment 1). A number of studies have been conducted in recent years to determine if investment returns would suffer under a total divestment objective. Such studies which indicate that portfolio performance would not be hurt; however, this time period has been a very good one for the stock market with many smaller companies outperforming the larger ones. This may not be the case in the next five years.

Would divestment help or hurt? Proponents say it would force American companies to cease operations, economic activity would decline, and the South African government would be forced to change its apartheid policy. Opponents reason that American companies help the economy by providing jobs for blacks as well as education and training opportunities and that divestment will not have an impact on the government anyway.

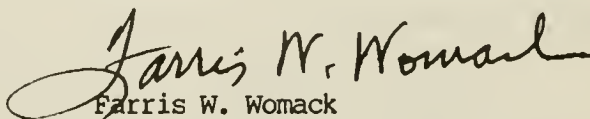

The most effective way the United States can effect change in South Africa is through our government's actions. The Administration has enacted limited sanctions after much political pressure (Attachment 2). The scope and depth of these sanctions is very limited with an expected minimal impact. The result has been a frustration on the part of some Americans to "do something" with the only perceived outlet being divestiture of stocks from American portfolios. The investment of American companies in South Africa is quite small both from the standpoint of total investments abroad and as a percent of total investment in South Africa. At best, divestiture represents a symbolic gesture rather than action to accomplish the objectives of the initiators.

On February 21, 1985, the Board of Trustees of the Endowment Fund of The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill passed a resolution to formally recognize a policy which had been followed for over a year; i.e., to not own stock in companies with operations in South Africa unless such companies are signatories of the Sullivan Principles (Attachment 3). On November 14, 1985, the UNC-CH Anti-Apartheid Support Group requested additional measures be taken. The Endowment Board decided against enacting their request (Attachments 4 and 5). On November 15, 1985, the Faculty Council passed a narrower resolution asking the school to divest of its holdings in companies doing "direct and extensive business with the government of South Africa" (Attachment 6). The Endowment Board will consider this resolution at the next meeting.

Mr. Linwood Jones
Page 3.

While we all deplore the situation in South Africa, it appears doubtful that divestiture will make much of a difference. The Endowment Board has taken positive steps by not investing in companies that are not Sullivan signatories. They will also address the new resolution passed by the Faculty Council to divest of stock in U.S. companies doing significant and direct business with the South African government. While the State Legislature may wish to address the issue for funds invested by the State, our leading colleges and universities have already addressed the issue and have established policies governing those funds for which they are primarily responsible. Accordingly, we would hope that any action taken by the Legislature would apply only to funds invested by the State and would not be binding on statutorily-created boards such as the endowment board of trustees.

Board of Trustees of the Endowment Fund
The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

WHEREAS the Endowment Board over a period of several months in 1984, thoroughly examined its investment policy in respect to the ownership of stock of U.S. companies operating in South Africa, and

WHEREAS the Board concluded that ownership of stock in U.S. companies operating in South Africa which were also signatories of the Sullivan Principles was preferable to a policy of complete divestiture, and

WHEREAS the Board instructed the administration to investigate ways and means of determining on a continuing basis, which companies were committed to the Sullivan Principles, and

WHEREAS the Board is satisfied that the means of objectively identifying such companies is available to the administration,

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that:

- (1) The University endowment shall not own stock in companies with operations in South Africa unless such companies are signatories of the Sullivan Principles.
- (2) The University shall subscribe to the Investor Responsibility Research Center, Inc. publications in order to monitor the activities of its portfolio companies with operations in South Africa.
- (3) The Board deplores the racial exploitation of human beings in any form and fervently hopes that those U.S. companies committed to racial justice will exert a positive force for peaceful change in South Africa.

Dear Mr. Jones:

In response to your letter of November 13 requesting information on UNCC funds invested with South African investors, please be advised that UNCC's investments are currently all in U.S. Government Securities. The University of North Carolina at Charlotte maintains approximately $935,000 of endowment funds with First Union National Bank as fiscal agent. Our present fiscal agent contract, copy attached, does not preclude the agent from purchasing debt instruments from companies who transact business with South Africa.

Other special funds maintained by the University are invested in short-term money market funds which are secured by U.S. Government Obligations or by promissory notes with either First Union Corporation or NNCB National Bank.

Dear Mr. Jones:

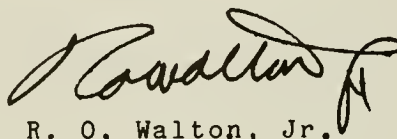

The Board of Trustees of the Endowment Fund are not actively considering disinvestment in those companies which do not agree to the Sullivan Principles.

We have continued to follow the discussion and trends in regard to South African question. Future investments will follow the Sullivan Principles and disinvestment will be done over time.

Disinvestment in South Africa may be a worthy goal. However, I believe that we must do so while protecting the investment of the State.

Please keep me advise of the Committee's deliberations.

Dear Mr. Jones:

This is in response to your inquiry of November 13, 1985, concerning investments in South Africa.

Some time ago, the University surveyed its investments and those of a separately incorporated Development Foundation that supports the University. That survey revealed limited holdings in only three companies that do business in South Africa. We then established that all three companies are signatories to the Sullivan Principles.

Our present thinking is to retain these holdings, subject to normal market considerations. Further, we expect subscription to the Sullivan Principles to be a required condition for retention of holdings the University may acquire in the future. This criterion has not been formally adopted by the various boards that have purview over investments of benefit to Western Carolina University.
However, these boards are expected to consider such adoption in the near future.

Please let me know if I can assist you further.

Cordially yours,

C. J. Carter

MEMORANDUM

TO: Honorable Harlan E. Boyles
State Treasurer

FROM: C. Douglas Chappell, Director
Investment and Banking Division

SUBJECT: Potential impact of House Bill #744 (A bill to Prohibit Investment in Companies Involved with South Africa)

We have attempted to identify the impact of this bill if enacted and offer the following which is formatted as a series of questions and answers:

1. From what companies and financial institutions would disinvestment be required?

As of the end of the last calendar quarter, March 31, 1985, we have identified some 61 corporations which are said to be doing business in or trading with South Africa, among the securities which are held in the State's investment portfolio. Fifty three of these companies are in our Equity Investment Fund. Twenty three are in our Long-term Investment Fund.

We have no way of knowing which North Carolina financial institutions have loans to or associations with South Africa. Therefore, we do not at present know what the impact would be in relation to banking relationships. The potential impact would involve the clearing of State warrants, certificates of deposit, repurchase agreements and equity advisor relationships.

2. Which ones subscribe to the Sullivan Principles?

Forty four of the fifty three companies in the equity portfolio are subscribers while twenty two of the twenty three in the bond portfolio are subscribers.

3. How much money, and what proportion of the portfolios would be involved in disinvestment?

$734,300,000 from the equity portfolio, equaling some 35% of the portfolio. Twenty-nine percent of the portfolio (companies) are subscribers to the Sullivan Principles. $741,758,000 from the bond portfolio, representing 16% of all the corporate issues. All but one of these are Sullivan subscribers.

In addition, we own in excess of $1.8 billion in U. S. Government securities in the long-term bond fund and over $1.8 billion in U. S. Government securities in the short-term bond fund. The reason for including these securities in this response is that the U. S. Government also has involvement in South Africa. As an example, the U. S. Government imports some 40% of its Chrome Ore from South Africa. Pure chrome is used to form a superalloy for use in jet engines, missiles or other high-stress applications. In other words, a vital part of our defense system.

HOUSE BILL #744

On this basis over 50% of all investment assets would be sold.

4. What are the anticipated costs of disinvestment to the State and to the pension fund beneficiaries?

At a minimum in excess of $3 million in brokerage charges on the sale and purchase of stocks alone; we would be selling 19.3 million shares of stock and buying considerably more shares (because of the per share price difference). Eleven million dollars in bond brokerage charges would be sustained in the selling and reinvestment of bond proceeds.

5. What is the potential monetary cost to the State between what would be earned without disinvestment and what would be earned with it (the difference needing to be made up or funded by the taxpayers of North Carolina)?

As a replacement for the $741,758,000 in corporate bonds that would be sold it is estimated that we would have to repurchase $1,148,075,000 in various fixed-income instruments in order to maintain the same cash flow.

The difference of $406,317,000 would be in addition to the $14 million plus identified in #4 above as brokerage charges.

The corporate portion of the portfolio would decline in quality from 97% "AA or better" to 80% "AA or better", while "single A" positions will rise from 3% to 20% as a result of the new investments being made in lesser capitalized companies, less liquid and lower quality securities.

The expected loss of (or decrease in) investment earnings will either decrease employee benefits or increase employer appropriations.

6. What are other known impacts on the State, of this bill?

As was briefly alluded to in the last response above, the act of selling is only the first step in a series of events. Liquidity, quality and income are all compromised under this concept. As an example, 91% of the international oil companies listed in the S & P 500 have direct investments in South Africa, as do 90% of the office equipment companies, 89% of

May 24, 1985

the drug companies, 88% of the chemical companies, and 89% of the auto manufacturing companies. The point being, where are the proceeds generated by the sale going to be reinvested?

Corporations with South African involvement have over 23,000 workers employed in North Carolina and there are over 16,000 civilians employed on military bases in our State. In addition there are many thousands of U. S. Government workers in the Departments of Agriculture, Education, Internal Revenue, EPA and the military whose employment in this state could be impacted by the action called for in this bill.

From a recent publication Disinvestment: Is it Legal? Is it Moral? Is it Productive? by the National Legal Center for the Public Interest located in Washington, D.C. we find that the arguments opposing disinvestment fall into two categories. First, the decision by a municipality or university to divest itself of holdings in companies doing business with unpopular regimes, but otherwise doing well financially, risks running afoul of the clearly defined parameters of fiduciary responsibility. Funds being held in trust for others (such as pension funds or endowments) cannot be squandered to make a political statement, however worthy, no more than they could be used to further other noble causes such as alleviating world hunger. The responsibility of the trustee is to insure that the funds in his charge receive the greatest legal return on their investment. While latitude is allowed in decision making, it is in the realm of business judgement and not in that of moral selectivity. Arguably, therefore, disinvestment for reasons other than business acumen is a breach of fiduciary responsibility.

The second category of argument is drawn from the U.S. Constitution itself. Briefly put, the power to conduct foreign affairs resides in the federal government alone; any encroachment upon this power by localities could be seen as a violation of important constitutional principles. Since such disinvestment initiatives are almost always at odds with the official stances of the federal government, and since they often overtly attempt to influence foreign activity, such political undertakings conceivably cannot withstand constitutional muster. Similarly, the constitutional prohibitions against states interfering with commerce beyond their borders are particularly acute, when their interference involves a foreign nation.

SUBJECT: Investments in Financial Institutions With Loans Outstanding to South Africa.

On September 19th, during our routine quarterly report on investment activities made to the Joint Legislative Commission on Governmental Operations, we were asked to determine if any financial institution in which we have investments had any outstanding loans to South Africa.

An analysis of our portfolios reveal the following. Our Short-term Investment Fund has, from time to time, investments in NCNB National Bank of North Carolina as indicated below:

- (1) Bankers Acceptances
- (2) Certificates of Deposit
- (3) Repurchase Agreements

According to data prepared by the Investor Responsibility Research Center located in Washington, D.C. which is dated January 1985 (they have no later statistics) NCNB Corporation had loans outstanding to the South African government and to South African state-owned corporations.

Our Equity Investment Fund has investments in BankAmerica Corporation. The same source referred to above, indicates loans outstanding to South Africa state-owned corporations.

To the best of our knowledge we have no other investments in financial institutions with similar loans outstanding.

FROM: C. Douglas Chappell, Director

SUBJECT: Updated Statistics Regarding Potential Impact of House Bill 744

The information contained in this memo was calculated using December 31, 1985 statistics.

1. From what companies and financial institutions would disinvestment be required?

The list comprised some 54 companies at the end of last year (December 31, 1985). Forty-seven of these companies were held in the Equity Investment Fund and are identified below:

Abbott Laboratories	IBM
American Home Products	Johnson & Johnson
American International Group	McGraw-Hill Inc.
American Express	Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co.
Baxter Travenol	Modil Corp.
Bristol-Myers Co.	Motorola Inc.
Borden, Inc.	Merck & Co.
Borg-Warner Corp.	Monsanto Co.
Caterpillar Tractor	NCR Corp.
Coca-Cola Co.	Pepsico Inc.
DuPont (E.I.)	Pfizer Inc.
Dresser Industries	Parker Hannifin Corp.
Dart & Kraft, Inc.	Phibro-Salomon Inc.
Dun & Bradstreet	Raytheon
Dow Chemical Co.	Smithkline Beckman
Eastman Kodak	Squibb Corp.
Exxon	Sperry Corp.
General Electric	Tenneco Inc.
General Motors Corp.	Union Carbide Corp.
General Motors Class H	United Technologies
Gillette Co.	Warner Communications
Goodyear Tire & Rubber	Westinghouse Electric
Honeywell Inc.	Xerox Corp.
Hewlett-Packard Co.

Fourteen companies were held in the Long-term Investment Fund and are identified below:

Abbott Laboratories	IBM
Conoco, Inc.	Kellogg Co.
DuPont (E.I.)	Kimberly-Clark Co.
Exxon Pipeline	Lislewood Corp.
General Electric Co.	(Western Electric Co.)
General Electric Credit Co.	Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co.
General Motors Acceptance Co.	Reynolds (R.J.) Ind.
General Motors Corp.

The impact relating to financial institutions is, to the best of my knowledge, the same as identified in the attached memorandum dated September 26, 1985. The potential and primary impact would be in Short-term Investment Fund and the Equity Investment Fund as indicated below:

STIF

EIF

Bank of America

2. Which of the companies identified in question number 1 above do not subscribe to the Sullivan Principles?

In the Equity Investment Fund, we find only one non-signatory company, Parker-Hannifin Corp. All of the companies represented in the Long-term Investment Fund are signers.

3. How much money, and what proportion of the portfolio, would be involved in disinvestment?

$769,391,352 from the equity portfolio equaling some 39.3% based on cost, representing some 31.5% of the companies in the portfolio (47 of 149).

$947,060,000 from the Corporate bond portfolio which represents 21.4% of the portfolio based on cost and some 17% of the companies (14 of 82).

4. What are the anticipated cost of disinvestment to the State and to the pension fund beneficiaries?

At a minimum, in excess of $3,106,904 in commissions on the sale and purchase of stocks alone, since we would be required to sell 19,418,150 shares of stock. Over $3,044,150 in bond commission charges for the sell and purchase of bonds. The minimum commission charges for stocks and corporate bonds would be $6,151,054.

5. What is the potential monetary cost to the State between what would be earned without disinvestment and what would be earned with it (the difference needing to be made up or funded by the taxpayer of North Carolina)?

Memorandum
March 10, 1986

A replacement for the $947,060,000 in corporate bonds sold would require a new purchase of $1,488,260,000 in various fixed-income instruments (according to an analysis by Salomon Brothers) just to maintain the present cash flow, now being generated by our present corporate bond investments.

The difference identified above of $541,200,000 would need to be added to the direct charges of $6,151,054 identified, as commissions, in number 4 above.

The corporate bond portfolio would decline in quality from 100% "AA or better" to 89.1% "AA or better". The "single A" percentage would increase from 0% to 10.9% as a result of the new investments into smaller capitalized, less liquid and lower quality securities.

A market yield "give-up" of 79 basis points would be realized. This translates into an annual yield difference of approximately $65,000,000.00.

SUBJECT: Description of the business of Parker Hannifin

On April 18, 1986 during the Committee inquiry, Senator Conder asked if we would provide to him and the Committee a brief description of the Parker Hannifin Corporation and to advise if it has operations in North Carolina.

Parker Hannifin was identified as the only company appearing in our Equity Investment Fund as of December 31, 1985 that had not subscribed to the "Sullivan Principles".

In response to his inquiry we offer the following:

First: Parker Hannifin Corporation is the world's largest manufacturer of a complete line of fluid systems, components, and replacement parts for builders and users of durable goods. Parker Hannifin components control, connect, and operate systems in equipment in three major market areas: industrial, aviation/space/marine, and automotive. The company entered the biomedical field in 1981. Using its fluids systems technology, it is developing products to treat diabetes, rheumatoid arthritis and other illnesses.

Second: Parker Hannifin does have North Carolina divisions operating in Forest City, Greensboro, Kinston, Vanceboro, Wake Forest and possibly other areas. (I spoke to a member of the management team at the Roberk Winshield Wiper Facility in Vanceboro after identifying myself and the purpose of the call he, understandably, was not comfortable sharing statistics with me, therefore I did not determine all of the locations within the State in which Parker Hannifin has operating divisions nor how many people are employed.)

Referring to an annual report in our files we find that Paul G. Schloemer is President and Chief Executive Officer. The address is 17325 Euclid Ave. Cleveland, Ohio 44112 and a phone number is 216/531-3000.

Ninth Report
On the Signatory Companies
To the Sullivan Principles

October 25, 1985

PART I. OVERVIEW

A. HIGHLIGHTS OF NINTH REPORT

During the Ninth Reporting Period, the Sullivan Program has progressed as follows:

- Number of Signatories grew by 50 percent.
- For the first time South African companies have become Signatories.
- All but one of the reporting units state that all facilities are desegregated.
- All but three reporting units meet minimum pay requirements.
- All reporting units indicate equal wages for equal work and uniform benefit plans.
- Contributions to community development showed dramatic growth.
- Signatories cited many instances of activity aimed at eroding apartheid regulations.
- Number of adopted schools increased by one third.
- Signatories cited increased instances of public denunciation of apartheid.
- The proportion of Blacks filling supervisory and managerial openings has dropped.

B. BACKGROUND

The Sullivan Principles (see facing page) are six principles that Dr. Leon H. Sullivan originally developed to guide American-owned companies operating in South Africa.

Signatories to the Sullivan Principles are companies that express commitment to the Principles by writing to Dr. Sullivan and committing to submit an annual report. Companies headquartered anywhere in the world can become Sullivan Signatories. Beginning with the Eighth Report, at the initiation of the majority of the Signatories, financial support became an additional requirement. Annual assessments range from $1,200 to $8,400 per year depending upon worldwide sales.

This report discusses the current status of the program, and presents individual ratings of the companies and a summary analysis of the data collected. It should interest shareholders, government organizations, and other parties needing information to help them factor social responsibility into their investment and purchasing decisions.

There are numerous codes of conduct for businesses operating in South Africa. These have been promulgated by domestic South African organizations (e.g., SACCOLA), individual companies (both domestic and foreign), a group of countries (EEC), individual countries (e.g., Canada), and a U.S. code open to companies of all nationalities (Sullivan principles). To this array, a U.S. code was added by Executive Order in September 1985. Beyond national origin, these codes can be further classified as voluntary (e.g., SACCOLA, company, and Sullivan codes) or mandatory (e.g., codes by the EEC, Canada, and U.S. Executive Order).

The codes all include similar basic employment and social standards for the workplace. Most of the codes were announced in the late 1970s but few, if any, (other than the Sullivan code) were updated later to reflect the changes in needs and conditions in South Africa. Some, like the EEC's code, continue to place heavy emphasis on union recognition, but this issue is not as significant now as it was when the code was formulated because South African law has since been changed to permit unions for every race. The Sullivan code, through its Fourth Amplification (for example), has done the best job of keeping current with the rapid pace of social change in South Africa.

From the start, the Sullivan code placed emphasis on the living conditions of Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians outside the workplace. This was in recognition of the need to improve living conditions (i.e., living in family units, freedom of movement, health, and housing) and education at all levels, not just job skill training. The Sullivan code was the first to require companies to seek the dismantling of apartheid by lobbying the South African Government. This concept has since been recognized in the U.S. Executive Order.

The other major significant difference between the Sullivan code and all of the other codes is the rating requirement. From the outset, Dr. Sullivan had the foresight to insist on regular reporting by Signatory companies. Reporting not only provides the basis for public information on the commitment to social programs by the companies operating in South Africa, but, as importantly, it causes each company to prepare and review a report on its own activities and to submit that report for an outside, independent assessment. This program is the only one which individually evaluates and rates companies on their social progress in South Africa. Non-reporting by a Signatory now results in being dropped as a member of the program.

Of the other codes, only the EEC code mandates reporting. Even in this case, however, only the British attempt enforcement and the performance of individual companies is not evaluated. The Canadian Government has a reporting procedure, but only one Canadian company out of 18¹ in South Africa reported last year. Thus, although there are several codes of conduct for companies of various nations operating in South Africa, only the Sullivan principles call for independent evaluation and rating of specific companies.

Dr. Sullivan first retained Arthur D. Little, Inc., in 1978 to assess the Signatories' participation in the program. Signatories report by completing a questionnaire prepared by Arthur D. Little, Inc. Before each response is submitted to Arthur D. Little, much of the quantitative information has been reviewed by the Signatory's outside auditor. Based on the information provided in the questionnaire, Arthur D. Little evaluates the Signatory companies, indicating the extent to which they have been successful in implementing the Principles. The questionnaire collects information to help track the aggregate performance of all Signatories, as well as to evaluate each individually. The questionnaire is updated annually: (1) to reflect changes in the program's basic requirements and rating focus, and (2) to gather information on new approaches the Signatories are using to implement the Principles. These revisions are based on inputs from Dr. Sullivan, and from U.S. and South African Task Forces made up of representatives from the Signatory companies. Inputs also result from annual visits to South Africa by Arthur D. Little staff.

The Sullivan reporting process provides companies with an evaluation of their efforts and a relative standard of comparison. The process identifies many specific requirements and standards which help bring reality to the rather general Principles themselves. Furthermore, the rating process is designed to provide incentives for annual increases in the collective level of performance by the participating companies.

This process has encouraged the Signatories to strive constantly for higher goals and has made their influence felt in South Africa far beyond that accorded by their proportion of the nation's total employment. Sullivan code standards have continually risen as a result of negotiation between the Signatories and Dr. Sullivan. Significantly, Signatories today are satisfying requirements which they would not have tolerated when the program was initiated. This is made possible by a dynamic, voluntary effort.

Further, review of the reports of new signatories invariably shows the necessity for such entrants to markedly increase the level of their social activities in South Africa in order to achieve a passing rating.

C. CHANGES IN THE RATING PROCESS

In the past, Signatories whose South African subsidiaries had few employees or which had minority ownership in their subsidiaries were not required to submit annual reports. Beginning this year, all Signatories with employees or equity ownership in South Africa are required to report annually, regardless of their number of employees or percentage of ownership. Signatories whose South African subsidiaries have fewer than 25 employees or who have less than 50 percent ownership in their subsidiaries were given the option of reporting on (1) the full length questionnaire or (2) an abbreviated questionnaire. However, to be a candidate for a top ranking, Category I, a company must file a full length questionnaire. Information from abbreviated reports makes it possible to gauge compliance with the basic requirements of Principles 1, 2, and 3 and to determine whether a reasonable effort is being made on programs related to Principles 4, 5, and 6.

In the spirit of continuing evolution, Arthur D. Little was authorized to make changes in the reporting format for the Ninth Cycle. A prime objective was to decrease attention on goals that have been mplished in order to focus on new goals being identified by the task forces of the Signatory companies, to consolidate unnecessary detail while continuing to provide the basis for individual company ratings. task groups concerned with Principles 4, 5, and 6 revised programs to encourage, but not make mandatory, more focused effort by all Signatories. The objective was to concentrate on areas of greatest need, particularly where companies can have a considerable impact in the stimulation of social change.

For example, new areas of inquiry on the questionnaire included the Fourth Amplification. The Fourth Amplification was proposed by Dr. Sullivan, and its embodiment in the Statement of Principles was the result of negotiation between the companies and Dr. Sullivan. In summary, the Fourth Amplification requires Signatories to press the South African government to end the laws and regulations which constitute apartheid. A few companies have been tackling and reporting such activities but more widespread commitment occurred with the adoption of this Amplification in December 1984. Since this occurred halfway through the Ninth Cycle reporting year, the requirement has not been mandatory, but in this cycle extra credit has been given to those companies who initiated relevant response. Asking companies to interact directly with government adds an entirely new dimension to the program, so additional evaluation criteria are being evolved for the Tenth Cycle.

Further challenges and higher standards will be introduced in the future as the result of similar proposals and negotiations.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

As of October 25, 1985, there were 178 U.S. Signatories and 3 non-U.S. Signatories. This represented a total net increase of 53 Signatories to the Principles (Table 1). Of those Signatories that joined the program in the Ninth Reporting Period, 16 were reinstated Signatories, 45 were new U.S. Signatories, and two were new non-U.S. Signatories. Signatories withdrawn from the program included one Signatory which withdrew from South Africa and the Sullivan Program, two Signatories which withdrew from the Sullivan Program but remained in South Africa, and five Signatories which were dropped from the program for not reporting. Additionally, three signatories merged into one.

New Signatories are not required to report for rating purposes until the end of the first full fiscal year after they notify Dr. Sullivan in writing of their commitment to the Principles. Therefore, the Ninth Report results are for the 112 Signatories reporting on either full or abbreviated questionnaires.

These 112 Signatories reported on 146 corporate entities representing 190 subsidiaries. This represented a net increase of 14 reporting Signatories over the Eighth Report (Table 2). A corporate entity, for reporting purposes, can consist of one or more subsidiaries depending on the extent to which operations are under common management.

Of the 146 reporting units in the Ninth Report, 119 were assessed by the long form questionnaire and 27 were assessed by the short form (under 25 employees and/or less than 50 percent equity) (Table 3).

When evaluating Signatory performance, companies were not assigned to the three categories (I: "Making Good Progress," II: "Making Progress," and III: "Needs to Become More Active") in accordance with any predetermined quota. In fact, it is possible that all companies will eventually move into one of the passing categories, I or II. To assist in this process, over the *Signatories not reporting on a portion of their operations in South Africa are identified in the alphabetical listing of Signatories in Section IV of this report.

From one reporting period to the next, subsidiaries of Signatories may move from one category to another, and substantial tolerance should be shown for Signatories that move down by only one category. Because companies are rated in part in relation to each other rather than against an absolute standard, ratings may change over time. It is difficult — and possibly unfair — to judge a company on its rating in any single year; the pattern of its ratings over several years is more important.

E. COMMENTARY ON SIGNATORY PERFORMANCE

Observers of South Africa point to the major impacts of the Signatories there. The total employment of the reporting Signatories in South Africa is 62,656, less than 1 percent of the total economically active labor force. Yet, after the government made home ownership for blacks possible in the urban townships through the medium of 99-year land leases, employees of the Signatory companies held 1,701 leases (5 percent) of 34,384 in existence on June 30, 1984. Thus, the Black employees of Signatory companies are participating in the 99-year lease program at a rate approximately nine times greater than for the national labor force. The performance was made possible by aggressive initiative to educate employees on the merits of home ownership and to assist them with applications and financing.

With four exceptions, all of the reporting Signatories have been able to report that they now meet all the requirements of the first three Principles, including the amplifications of those Principles. Of the four exceptions, one Signatory failed to meet desegregation requirements and three Signatories failed to achieve the minimum entry wage for one or more of their subsidiaries. Failing to meet minimum pay requirements is a particularly vexing problem because two possible solutions are mechanization, which would eliminate many jobs, or closing, which would eliminate all jobs. This is a very real dilemma for labor-intensive businesses which are serving the local market and competing against companies which are not trying to meet the standards of the Sullivan Principles. Continuing effort is being devoted to finding practical solutions that recognize the need to provide wages reasonably above the subsistence level. Note that the South African government sets no minimum wage.

On Principles 4, 5, and 6; Signatories show increased commitments of rand expenditures and personnel, although most Signatories continue to be affected by the recession in South Africa. The annual reporting requirement and evaluation has encouraged Signatories to steadily increase their level of participation in implementing the program required by the Principles. For example, there has been a yearly upward trend in the giving of money by the companies for both education and community development. This year the increases, calculated as a percentage of payroll, significantly exceed prior years. Because Signatories are scored relative to each other, it took a substantially higher contribution as a percentage of payroll to achieve the same level of credit this year as compared to last year.

The increase for community development is especially large this year. Three factors have had significant impact. First, the community development, health, and housing task groups in South Africa have been particularly active in searching out opportunities. Second, an increasing number of South African recipient organizations have obtained U.S. Federal tax exemption under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, which facilitates donations from U.S. parent companies. Third, contributions in dollars have been credited at the low rand exchange rate of two rands per dollar in effect on June 30.

Some companies are continuing to experience poor financial performance due to the recession. Many of them have resisted pressure to reduce staff and have increased their man-days effort in the form of employee-days to effect change in education and the community even though it was not possible to increase monetary giving.

Signatory response to the Fourth Amplification has shown most dramatically that, for U.S. companies, doing business in South Africa is not business as usual. Companies which would not normally oppose government regulations in a foreign country where they operate now find it necessary and prudent to encourage the dissolution of apartheid. They are finding a wide variety of issues to press with the South African Government in the interests of maintaining and building the local economy.

The relatively higher level of social performance by the Signatories is all the more commendable when one realizes that they are competing, for the most part, with other companies in the South African market. (Essentially, only the Signatories in the minerals industry sell their products beyond Southern Africa.) The competition is largely with domestic South African, European, and Japanese firms. Thus, it is a misconception to think that American companies are in South Africa to take advantage of low wage rates; in fact, substantial evidence shows that the Signatories, as a general rule, are the highest entry level wage payers. Other firms are complaining that the Signatories are upsetting the labor market with their higher minimum wage rates and benefits. Those other employers report that some of the best people are gravitating to Signatory companies. This is but one example of the ripple effect of Signatory activities.

The major disappointment in this most recent reporting period has been the reduction in the proportion of new job openings filled by Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians. Only 61 percent of new hires and promotions were filled by Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians — a drop of 6 and 13 percent from last year and the previous year, respectively. An especially sharp drop occurred in the vacancies for supervisors that were filled by Blacks, which declined from 26 percent last year to 18 percent this year. The greater availability of experienced supervisors in the market due to the recession may be inhibiting the appointment of less experienced Black supervisors.

With the large influx of new Signatories and the new requirement this year that all Signatories must report, information is now becoming available about South African companies in partnership with U.S. Signatory companies. Because these non-U.S. companies have relationships with Signatory companies, they are being induced to improve their standards. As an example, several Signatories were not required to report this year but did submit trial questionnaire responses. Each of these companies received failing scores for activities related to principles 4, 5, and 6, with scores ranging from 2 to 16 out of 60 available points. To meet the minimum pay standard of the Sullivan program, one new Signatory had to institute a 25 percent pay raise for its lowest paid people.

PART II. PERFORMANCE EVALUATION METHODOLOGY

A. INTRODUCTION

New Signatories are not required to report for rating purposes until the end of the first full fiscal year after they notify Dr. Sullivan in writing of their commitment to the Principles. All other Signatories are required to report annually.

A Signatory must complete a full report for evaluation if its South African subsidiary has 25 or more employees or it has 50 percent or more equity in the South African subsidiary. A Signatory may elect to complete a short form report for evaluation if its South African subsidiary has fewer than 25 employees or holds less than 50 percent equity in its South African subsidiary. However, in order for a Signatory to demonstrate performance commensurate with Category I companies, it must file a full length questionnaire for evaluation.

The rating system for the Ninth Report has been designed to accomplish six objectives:

- To be as fair and equitable as possible;
- To measure those Signatory efforts to implement the six Principles that can be evaluated for each company each year;
- To distinguish among different levels of progress being made by the individual Signatories;
- To take into account each company's size, location, and industry;
- To consider special circumstances affecting individual companies; and
- To be understood easily both by Signatories and by readers of this progress report.

As in past reports, the rating system measures a Signatory's progress in relation to the progress of other Signatories. The South African social situation is changing, and the Signatories' sizes and types of business show great diversity. Therefore, except for the basic requirements discussed below, it has not been possible to specify absolute standards that must be met for automatic inclusion in any one of the three major rating categories.

In the Ninth Report, for both long form and short form reports, Signatory performance was evaluated in a two-tier manner:

- Signatories were required to meet nine "basic requirements" pertaining to Principles 1, 2, and 3.
- Signatories were required to participate in three action areas related to Principles 4, 5, and 6:
 - Education,
 - Training and Advancement, and
 - Community Development.

B. BASIC REQUIREMENTS (Principles 1, 2, and 3)

Each Signatory company is required to meet nine criteria known as "basic requirements." These basic requirements evaluate how a Signatory has implemented Principle 1 (non-segregation of all facilities), Principle 2 (equal and fair employment practices for all employees), and Principle 3 (equal pay for equal work). The basic requirements are evaluated in a binary fashion, a Signatory passes each basic requirement or it does not. This approach enables employees to monitor performance. The basic requirements are:

1. Freedom of Association

The company supports the elimination of discrimination against the rights of Blacks to form or belong to Government-registered or unregistered unions; it acknowledges the right of Black workers to form their own unions or to be represented by trade unions where unions already exist.

2. Benefits

All benefits available to Whites are also available to other races, and the benefits for Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians are at least equal to those for Whites. An exception is health care, where the benefits are technically equal, although the institutions providing the services may be administered separately.

3. Equal Pay

The company pays all employees equally for doing equal or comparable work for the same length of time.

4. Minimum Pay

The company has an entry base pay for all employees that is at least 30% greater than either:

- The University of South Africa's (UNISA) Minimum Living Level (MLL) for a family of 5 or 6; or
- The University of Port Elizabeth's Household Subsistence Level (HSL) for a family of 5 or 6.

Companies operating in defined rural areas must pay at least the MLL or HSL and achieve the 30 percent premium within 5 years by regular annual pay increases.

5. Communication

The company ensures that all employees see the Statement of Principles in a language that they understand and become aware that the company is a Signatory.

6. Rating

The company agrees to make its rating category in the Ninth Report known to all employees and to review the rating with representative groups of employees.

7. Review

The company agrees to review the implementation of the Principles with representative groups of employees several times each year.

8. Desegregation

All Signatories' facilities are available to all races.

9. Review by Accounting Firm

All long form reports provided by publicly held Signatories must be reviewed by their accounting firm(s) to verify the accuracy of the information provided in selected numeric questions of the report.

This requirement's primary purpose is to strengthen the overall credibility of the Sullivan Principles reporting effort by having outside entities verify the accuracy of selected numeric portions of the questionnaire information.

Four items of information were required to be verified in the Ninth Report:

- Total payroll;
- Total employment;
- Percent by which lowest paid employee's pay exceeds the MLL HSL; and
- Total expenditures made for education and community-development programs.

Accountants were not expected to make judgments about (1) issues such as the extent of desegregation or equality of benefits, or (2) narrative information provided by Signatories on other qualitative issues.

C. REQUIRED ACTION AREAS (Principles 4, 5, and 6)

For Signatories who pass the nine basic requirements which encompass Sullivan Principles 1, 2, and 3, the rating process measures how each individual reporting unit has progressed toward implementing Principles 4, 5, and 6 in relation to three action areas:

- Education for Non-employees;
- Training and Advancement; and
- Community Development.

Signatories submitting full length detailed questionnaires are evaluated and assigned quantitative and qualitative scores in each of the three action areas. This is because some criteria lend themselves well to quantitative data analysis, while others can be judged only by qualitative interpretations that take into account special circumstances. Signatories opting to submit short form questionnaires as outlined in the Introduction of this Section are assessed in these three action areas on a qualitative basis only.

Potential quantitative and qualitative points were distributed among the three action areas as follows:

Area	Maximum Quantitative Points	Maximum Qualitative Points	Total Points
Education for Non-Employees	10	10	20
Training and Advancement	10	10	20
Community Development	10	10	20
			60

To make possible equitable comparisons among companies of different sizes, quantitative ratings were based on ratios calculated by dividing the specific factor to be evaluated (number of rand spent; number of Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians trained; etc.) by a measure of the reporting unit's size (the payroll in rand or the total number of Black, Coloured, and Asian employees). All ratios were rank-ordered to determine a Signatory's standing in relation to other Signatories.

To make qualitative interpretations, responses to several questions in each of the three areas were evaluated. A minimum of two people from a group of five read each Signatory report and independently assigned scores. Differences between ratings were discussed and resolved on a question-by-question basis. This method of analysis allowed the raters to consider a wide variety of special situations—including size, industry, location, and economic condition of an individual Signatory Company—and to reflect in the qualitative ratings those activities that could not be measured in rand or numbers of people.

Although no company could obtain credit for more than 10 qualitative points in an area and points were not transferred among areas, diverse efforts by Signatory companies were accommodated during the rating process. In Education for Non-employees, for instance, a Signatory could earn substantial credit for a strong Adopt-A-School effort. A Signatory without this specific program could, however, still earn a top rating (10 qualitative points) for education if it had other, very strong educational programs.

1. Education for Non-Employees

In the area of education for non-employees, quantitative points were based on the relation between the reporting unit's total payroll and its rand contributions to primary, secondary, technical, and university programs that benefit Black, Coloured, or Asian South Africans. These programs include, but are not limited to: Teacher Opportunity Programmes (T.O.P.S.), Pace College, Winter School, Education Information Center, St Barnabas, Institute of International Education, technikons, and universities. Contributions made to Adopt-A-School programs and to non-skilled training were also counted in calculating this ratio.

Qualitative-point assignments were based on a combination of factors that included:

- Extent of participation in Adopt-A-School in relation to a Signatory's size (number of students assisted, type of non-monetary support provided, extent of Signatory-employee involvement with the schools adopted), and extent to which the Signatory has been able to encourage additional government support for schools it has adopted.
- Range of other education programs assisted, number of students benefiting, and extent to which non-financial help has been provided.
- Fourth Amplification efforts with respect to the education of non-employees.

2. Training and Advancement

In the area of training and advancement, measuring progress across a wide range of industries with different job structures, work force sizes, and geographic distribution is far from a straightforward process.

Quantitative points were based on three measures calculated from data provided by each Signatory. To the greatest extent possible, these ratios evaluate the advancement of Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians in rela-to the total number of available opportunities for advancement in each South African subsidiary. This approach minimizes the potential negative bias in the rating system against companies whose work forces were reduced during the year because of South Africa's economic downturn. The quantitative measures are:

The average number of training days per Black, Coloured, or Asian employee in skilled, clerical/administrative, professional, sales, supervisory and managerial positions;

The proportion of managerial and supervisory position vacancies filled by Black, Coloured, and Asian employees relative to the 50 percent goal advocated by Dr. Sullivan;

The proportion of Blacks, Coloureds and Asians in skilled professional, sales, supervisory and managerial positions at the end of the reporting period.

These ratios measure both (1) the efforts Signatories are making to prepare their Black, Coloured, and Asian work forces for upward mobility and (2) the number of Black, Coloured, and Asian employees who have actually advanced. Special attention was given to training and advancement for supervisory and managerial positions.

Qualitative points assigned in the training and advancement area were based on:

The number of Black, Coloured, and Asian employees to which Signatories provided non-skilled training and the extent of that training;

The number of Black, Coloured, and Asian employees being trained for supervisory or managerial positions;

The number of Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians who were supervising Whites and others;

Special efforts made to prepare a Signatory's supervisors (most of whom are White) to understand and support the company's efforts to provide advancement opportunities for Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians;

Special approaches to training — in particular, those that help Black, Coloured, and Asian employees to meet Signatories' standards for supervisory and managerial positions; and

- Fourth Amplification efforts in relation to training and advancement issues.

3. Community Development

In the community development area, quantitative-point assignments were based on the relation between payroll rand and rand contributed to programs that benefit Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians in business, housing, health, welfare, and recreation. Contributions to groups such as the United States South African Leadership Exchange Program (USSALEP), the National African Chamber of Commerce, and the Urban Foundation were considered here.

Qualitative points assigned in this area were based on such activities as:

- Efforts made to assist the development of businesses owned by Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians in South Africa (purchases of goods and services, consulting assistance, etc.);
- Deposits made in banks owned by Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians;
- Non-financial support provided to the programs of the National African Federated Chamber of Commerce and its local affiliates;
- Donations of Signatory time to assist housing, health, welfare, and recreation programs that benefit Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians;
- Assistance provided to Black, Coloured, and Asian employees to purchase their own homes or to improve the conditions of hostels used by employees living away from their homes;
- Assistance to Blacks in obtaining 99 year leases;
- Efforts made to help Black employees take advantage of rights to reside in urban areas to which they are legally entitled;
- Non-financial support provided to such programs as Adopt-A-Clinic and the Community Development Worker Programme; and

- Fourth Amplification efforts with respect to housing and urban rights issues.

Special attention was given in the Ninth Report to public and private efforts to individually or collectively bring an end to discriminatory laws and practices in South Africa as well as efforts to encourage non-Signatory companies to implement a code of employee and community relations similar to the Principles.

D. CATEGORY ASSIGNMENT

The three major rating categories used in this report are:

- (I) Making Good Progress. Any Signatory wishing to be assessed at a level of performance commensurate with Category standards must submit for evaluation the full length detailed questionnaire.
- (II) Making Progress. Category II is divided into two sub-categories distinguished by the report submitted:
 - (IIA) Signatories using the standard (long-form) questionnaire, and
 - (IIB) Signatories using the short form, as outlined in the Introduction of this Section.
- (III) Needs to Become More Active. Category III is divided into two distinct sub-categories irrespective of the type of report submitted:
 - (IIIA) Signatories met the basic requirements for Principles 1, 2, and 3 but received low point ratings on Principles 4, 5, and 6.
 - (IIIB) Signatories did not meet the basic requirements for Principles 1, 2, and 3.
 Signatories in both IIIA and IIIB sub-categories need to become more active.

In the Ninth Report, Signatories submitting full length questionnaires in Principles 4, 5, and 6 had scores ranging from a low of 1 point to a high of 53 points on the 60-point scale. This wide range of scores indicates the varying degrees of implementation by individual Signatories of the Sullivan Principles 4, 5, and 6. The distribution of these total scores were examined to determine score intervals. For assigning reporting units to Category I, IIA, or IIIA, this analysis helped define the cut-off points for each of these three major rating categories. Any Signatory with a score close to an interval line was reexamined in detail to verify its category assignment.

Section IV of this Report lists individual Signatories and their rating categories. Individual point scores are not provided, because it is difficult — and potentially misleading — to distinguish among Signatories within a given category.

From reporting period to reporting period, individual Signatories may move up or down in rating categories. A downward shift does not necessarily imply that a company is applying less effort to implement the Principles than it did in previous years. It does imply that the Signatory's pace has not kept up with that of some of its peers. In evaluating the performance of an individual Signatory, it is important to consider its ratings for all the periods it reported.

Other categories include Endorsers of the Sullivan Principles with no employees or investment in South Africa (IV) and new Signatories (V). A list of U.S. businesses in South Africa, including those that are not Signatories to the Sullivan Principles, can be purchased from the Investor's Responsibility Research Center at 1319 F Street, N.W., Suite 900, Washington, DC, 20004, (202) 833-3727.

PART III. ANALYSIS OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS

A. INTRODUCTION

The Signatory profile and discussion of Principles 1, 2, and 3 are based on data collected from all 146 Signatory reporting units. The analysis of efforts on Principles 4, 5, and 6 is based on data collected from 115 Signatories who filed long form questionnaires. The long form questionnaires for 4 corporate entities, although rated, arrived too late to be considered in the Ninth Analysis. The 115 reporting units in this latter analysis represent 154 of the 190 subsidiaries in South Africa reported upon by all Signatories.

B. SIGNATORY PROFILE

Of the 190 South African subsidiaries reported in the Ninth Report: 83 percent were wholly-owned by their parents; Signatories held 50 percent or more of the equity in another 10 percent of these subsidiaries; and the Signatory parent held minority equity in the remaining 7 percent (Table 5). The latter Signatories had to obtain agreement of non-Signatory owners in order to report. In some cases, obtaining such agreement presented a substantial obstacle.

In the Ninth Report, the 146 reporting unit operations covered a wide variety of industries (Table 6). Nearly one third of the 62,656 Signatory employees are employed in the consumer goods and automotive industries.

Over half of the work force in the Ninth Report was employed by Signatories with reporting units of 1,000 or more employees (Table 7). However, the median size Signatory subsidiary is 194 employees.

The racial composition of the work force remained largely the same as in previous reports (Table 8 and Figure 1).

C. BASIC REQUIREMENTS

Except for one incidence of segregated facilities at the workplace and three minimum wage failures, all Signatories met all of the basic requirements (Table 9).

A few specific aspects deserve comment.

Unions

The number of Signatories with recognition agreements with unions representing Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians increased slightly.

Medical Aid

The provision of medical aid (insurance) for employees and their families has been a challenge in South Africa. At the start of the Sullivan Program, nearly all companies had mandatory coverage for Whites and permitted Blacks, Coloureds and Asians to join. But often these medical aid plans established for Whites were priced too high for Blacks who use health care services less frequently and had lower cost government provided services available. Now 80 percent of the Signatories have mandatory coverage for all races and this percentage is increasing. Coverage has been arranged at appropriate rates by race and much education on the desirability of participating has taken place. This accomplishment has not been easy and has required considerable innovation on the part of the companies.

With this medical coverage, Blacks are increasingly going to White doctors outside the government system. Thus, Blacks now can access the private health care system.

Equal Pay For Equal Work

In the Ninth Report, all reporting units stated that they were paying all races at the same rate for equal work.

Minimum Pay

This Principle embraces the concept that employees of the Signatories should be guaranteed a standard of living that will allow them some dignity. To this end, Signatories are asked to report their minimum wage in relation to established economic minimum living levels. The standards used (for families of five or six) are the Minimum Living Level (MLL) established by the University of South Africa and the Household Subsistence Level (HSL) established by the University of Port Elizabeth. It is important to recognize that the MLL/HSL represent a minimal allowance for living requirements. These standards are calculated with allowances for food, clothing, compulsory payments to authorities, fuel/light, washing/cleaning materials, transport, medical expenses, education, household equipment, and taxes. In this allowance, for example, a Black person could buy two pairs of underwear and three pairs of socks a year. To quote from the University of South Africa August 1981 MLL Report: "The MLL is the lowest sum possible on which a specific size of household can live in our existing social set-up . . . rational expenditure is assumed throughout. As it is highly unlikely that persons at this living level know very much about dietary requirements . . . the sum estimated for the MLL is at best a theoretical minimum."

The average MLL/HSL associated with subsidiary locations affiliated with the 118 corporate entities that reported on the long form in this period is 491 rand — approximately $245 (U.S.) as of June 30, 1985. In the Ninth Reporting Period the lowest paid employees in non-rural locations received wages which averaged 56 percent in excess of the MLL/HSL. This is an increase over the Eighth Report. In the Ninth Reporting Period, Signatories paid employees at 14 locations more than twice the MLL/HSL associated with those locations (Table 10).

Desegregation

The one company which had not achieved desegregation did not report last year.

* A reporting unit may have listed more than one MLL or HSL for its different plant or office locations. There were 236 of these locations listed.

 One rural company, with two locations, has been included in this category because, although they did not pay 30% greater than the MLL/HSL, they have satisfied the minimum wage requirements for their respective non-urban locations.

D. REQUIRED ACTION AREAS

Education for Non-employees

The Signatories reported spending approximately 14 million rand on education programs for Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians who are not their employees. This includes bursaries and other grants to individual students (Table 11), contributions to the Teacher Opportunity Programmes, remedial education programs, and participation in the Adopt-A-School program, as well as other contributions for general support of educational institutions such as Pace College and education programs operated by Signatories to serve Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians living near their facilities (Table 12). This is an increase of 2 million rand over the amount reported in the Eighth Report.

Activity during the Ninth Reporting Period increased in the area of education of non-employees; for example:

- The number of schools "adopted" increased from 250 in the Eighth Report to 332 in the Ninth Report (see Table 13). Eighty-seven percent of the reporting units have adopted at least one school. The amount of money spent on Signatory-adopted schools increased by 44 percent.
- In early 1984, the Education Task Group in South Africa announced initial programs in a new national education effort. The effort has long- and short-term focuses. For the long term, support of the Urban Foundation Education Trust for the benefit of the Teacher Opportunity Programmes is being encouraged. This is an in-service teacher development program directed at unqualified black teachers at the higher primary school level. These teachers have only a "standard eight" education (a secondary level education) plus two years at a training college. The objective is to help put them in a position to obtain their senior education certificate qualifications. For the shorter term, remedial programs are addressing the educational deficiencies of students now in the system. The programs include supplementary efforts on Saturday mornings, a crash course during school holidays to prepare for year-end examinations, and career guidance. Signatory efforts in these areas, measured in rand as well as employee days, increased during the Ninth Reporting Period.

These and other indicators of heightened participation in education are especially significant in view of the overall reduction in South Africa's economic activity during this period. Even though the recession has diminished earnings and caused severe cutbacks in operating budgets for a number of Signatories, companies are reporting increases in employee time spent in this area. Signatory comments in the Ninth Report included the following:

- "In spite of our efforts to encourage private study, most of the teachers experienced difficulties in adjusting to the re-learning process. To overcome this problem, we enrolled 27 teachers at an Adult Education Centre in Tembisa where they received group instruction at evening classes. As we discovered during the last reporting period, this approach has proved to be far more effective in preparing these adults for independent effort and five teachers were successful in attaining their school leaving certificate in the 1984 year-end examination. The remaining number, who wrote their examinations in May 1985, are presently awaiting results."

Fourteen Nurses received bursaries at Rand Afrikaanse University. These bursaries were expanded in 1984/85 both to encourage the expansion in the number of non-white nurses trained and to help the university financially in its first move ever to admit non-white students.

- "By improving the functioning of the administration, we can make a significant contribution to improving the climate for learning. Recognizing that the company had expertise in this area, we proposed that the Principals and senior staff members of both schools participate in our in-house management training programmes, focusing on skills development in general management and conflict resolution."
- "Although St. Anthony's facilities are open to all races, the Highveld Technical College run by the educational department was only open to Coloureds. There were also no facilities on the East Rand available for working Blacks to study these technical courses in the evenings. These two factors prompted the East Rand Sullivan Signatories to personally approach the Minister for Education, Mr. Rabie. As a direct result of this meeting, Highveld Technical Training College is now open to all races. The fact that the government has sanctioned a racially mixed college due to the combined corporate influence of the East Rand Task Force of Sullivan Signatories, spurred on by the Fourth Amplification, shows what can and should be done in the future."

Training and Advancement

In the Ninth Report, a number of Signatories reported across-the-board cutbacks in their training as a result of the continuing recession in South Africa. Several hypothesize reduced employee morale when training for advancement in economic circumstances that severely reduce or eliminate the likelihood of advancement opportunities.

Training. However, during the Ninth Reporting Period, Signatories continued to provide a wide range of training opportunities for their Black, Coloured, and Asian employees. The racial composition of training programs at selected occupational levels varied. In the Ninth Report, 97 percent of the employees receiving training for unskilled/semi-skilled occupational levels were Black, Coloured, or Asian. In contrast, 34 percent of the employees receiving training for supervisory/managerial jobs were Black, Coloured or Asian. (Table 14).

Compared with training activities reported in the Eighth Report: the proportion of Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians in training programs for skilled, clerical, and administrative positions increased slightly. There was a substantial decrease in the proportion of Blacks, Coloureds and Asians being trained for sales and professional positions; there was an increase in the proportion of Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians in training programs for supervisory and managerial positions (see Table 14).

During the Ninth Reporting Period Signatories provided 1,189 bursaries and tuition refunds totaling 384,626 rand for Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians for primary and secondary school education, technical colleges, university education, and other education programs (Table 15). In addition, 97 Signatory employees passed their matrices through the Continuing Education Program Project or similar programs during this reporting period.

Advancement. In the Ninth Reporting Period, Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians filled 61 percent of all job openings (Table 16). This represents a continuing decrease over the last three reporting periods. In the Ninth Report, the proportion of Blacks filling supervisory vacancies decreased by almost one third compared to the Eighth Reporting period. Blacks filled only 4 percent of the managerial openings in the Ninth Report. This proportion decreased slightly from the Eighth Report (Figure 2).

Managerial positions are still dominated by Whites. In the Ninth Report, Whites hold 94.7 percent of the total number of managerial positions (Table 17 and Figure 3). In recent years the Signatories have made only limited progress in advancing Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians to management positions. To help improve this situation, special information was reported for the more than 200 non-white managers.

A review of this information indicated that while Black, Coloured and Asian managers hold only 5 percent of the Signatories' management positions, a number of these positions have major importance to the companies' operations. Job titles included: Production Superintendent, Area Sales Manager, Plantation Manager, National Marketing Manager, Plant Personnel Manager, Purchasing Manager, and Quality Assurance Manager. The range of operating management positions these individuals occupy suggests that Signatory Black, Coloured, and Asian managers have responsibilities that extend beyond jobs in "affirmative action" or "community relations" areas.

While, as a group, their budget responsibilities and number of employees supervised vary widely, variation appears to reflect the nature of their individual assignments. Several have budget responsibility for well over 1 million rand as well as some responsibility for their companies' overall business planning and budgeting. A number of these individuals also play major roles in implementing these plans. Almost all these managers have received training during the last reporting period. Many have been assigned mentors to help them continue their professional development and prepare for more senior executive positions.

In the Ninth Reporting Period, the number of Whites supervised by Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians increased to 875, up from 744 in the Eighth Report. Seventy-four percent of the reporting units indicated they had at least one White employee supervised by a Black, Coloured, or Asian.

In spite of the uneven progress made by the Signatories as a group in the training and advancement area, a number of individual companies made significant efforts in this report period:

- One signatory obtained a South African government minister's consent that Black, Coloured, and Asians be admitted to a technical college that previously had accepted only White students. The company took the position that it would withdraw its White employee students from the school, which was near its plant, if their Black, Coloured, and Asian co-workers were not allowed to study with them.
- One company closed its offices for a day and had all its employees visit the facilities of another Signatory which has a reputation for especially effective training programs. Their methods were studied and adopted for use by this company. It is hoped that the dramatic action of closing the offices and involving all employees in the process will help to implement the new programs successfully.
- Several Signatories are preparing Black, Coloured, and Asian employees for advancement to executive positions in non-traditional ways. One has appointed three to serve on the Board of Trustees of its Pension Fund to broaden their exposure and level of decision-influencing. Others are adopting formal mentoring and assessment center techniques. Still others are continuing to send multi-racial teams of potential senior managers to "Outward Bound"-like programs.
- One Signatory reports achieving Dr. Sullivan's goal of filling 50 percent of its managerial and supervisory vacancies with Blacks, Coloureds, and Asians during this reporting period.

Community Development

Since the Eight Report, the Signatories collectively made significant increases in their efforts, measured by both financial and employee-time contributions, to implement Principle 6. Contributions for community development programs in the areas of housing, health, welfare, civic activities, and recreation increased by more than 17 million rand and 35,000 employee days to 25.6 million rand and 46,936 employee days (Table 18.)

Civic Activities. Support of Black, Coloured, and Asian businesses increased during the Ninth Reporting Period. Ninety-six percent of the reporting units made visits to evaluate possible purchases of goods and services. Their actual purchases totaled 15.8 million rand, an increase of 44% from the Eighth Report.

Doing business with Black, Coloured, and Asian enterprises can be frustrating because of the difficulty in locating suppliers and particularly because some suppliers cannot produce a quality product on schedule. However, this situation is changing for the better as Signatory companies continue to offer support and to develop Black, Coloured, and Asian enterprises. During this reporting period, 3,830 Black, Coloured, and Asian businesses were provided consultancy or sponsored assistance by Signatory companies.

As Signatory companies attempt to locate Black, Coloured, and Asian suppliers from which to purchase goods and services, many approach the National African Federation of Chambers of Commerce for advice. To this end, various Signatories continue to work with this organization to develop a directory of suppliers to which companies may refer when making purchasing decisions.

In cooperation with the Small Business Development Corporation and other organizations, Signatory companies have been identifying and promoting Black, Coloured, and Asian businesses in order to improve their sales and profitability. In many instances, this assistance involves elimination of the bureaucratic red tape which many of these businesses must endure.

The influence that a Signatory company can have on a Black, Coloured, and Asian business in its early stages can be instrumental in the success or failure of the enterprise. One Signatory mentioned an unsatisfactory business relationship with a business which was resolved, not by cancelling orders, but by sending two senior employees to the business to advise the owners on ways to improve business operation. The exercise proved successful and this Signatory company looks forward to a continued good relationship with a growing company.

Urban Rights and Housing. In the Ninth Report the Signatories collectively negotiated for urban rights on behalf of 462 employees. Of those, 343 (74 percent) obtained permission to live with their families and work in urban areas. As of June 30, 1985, 1,148 Signatory employees still have not received the right to live with their families in a place convenient to their place of work.

For Blacks, the 99-year leasehold scheme offers a dramatic opportunity to improve housing in the urban townships. This scheme permits qualified Blacks (i.e., those with urban rights) to obtain 99-year leases of land on which they can buy an existing government-built house or, in the case of vacant land, build a house — sometimes in conjunction with a developer. Signatories have continued to assist employees to obtain these leases. During the Ninth Reporting Period, Signatory employees obtained 914 leases, bringing the total number of Signatory employees living in homes on 99-year leased property to 1,701.

The increased level of acceptance of 99-year leases and home ownership by Black employees has been the direct result of the continuing education programs conducted by the Signatories to inform their employees of the benefits of home ownership. Many Signatory companies held regular meetings with their employees to discuss house purchases or to advise them on the best and most cost-effective methods of home improvement. Further incentives have been offered by specific companies in the form of outright partial grants, loan subsidization, loan guarantees, and counseling to resolve issues between government and builders. The Signatory companies reported having devoted 4,857 man-days to housing efforts.

Health and Welfare. The Signatory companies continued to increase their efforts in the areas of health and welfare. The Friends of Baragwanath program has received increased support during the Ninth Reporting Period. In addition, many Signatory companies have become involved in the Adopt-A-Clinic program, providing support in the form of funds, equipment, maintenance, and advice to a medical clinic in their area. The success of the Crossroads Clinic at Empilisweni is one example of how Signatory companies worked together with a clinic and its dedicated staff to vastly increase the level of health care in a community.

Another area on which Signatory companies focussed during the Ninth Reporting period was in providing assistance to mobile clinics. These mobile clinics offer medical treatment to a large number of underprivileged communities across South Africa.

Signatory companies continue to allow their medical staff to spend a good deal of their time in the surrounding communities and schools. These doctors and nurses provide health education and medical treatment where it would otherwise be unavailable.

Other. The United States-South African Leadership Exchange Program, Urban Foundation, and Legal Resources Center continue to receive increasing contributions of both time and money from Signatory companies. The effect of the Legal Aid Clinic in Springs, operated to service neighboring townships, can be measured by the 450 consultations it provided in the month of May alone.

In the area of recreation, the Signatory companies are providing support by sponsoring local sports teams, improving playing fields, purchasing equipment, and volunteering time as coaches and teachers.

In most instances the publicly held parent company in the United States is the official Signatory. However, in a few instances the Signatory is actually a U.S. subsidiary. In those instances, the ultimate publicly held U.S. corporation is shown in brackets in the alphabetical listing, followed by a reference to one or more subsidiaries that are the actual Signatories.

PURPOSE

SEC. 2. The purpose of this Act is to set forth a comprehensive and complete framework to guide the efforts of the United States in helping to bring an end to apartheid in South Africa and lead to the establishment of a nonracial, democratic form of government. This Act sets out United States policy toward the Government of South Africa, the victims of apartheid, and the other states in southern Africa. It also provides the President with additional authority to work with the other industrial democracies to help end apartheid and establish democracy in South Africa.

TITLE I—POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES WITH RESPECT TO ENDING APARTHEID

POLICY TOWARD THE GOVERNMENT OF SOUTH AFRICA

SEC. 101. (a) United States policy toward the Government of South Africa shall be designed to bring about reforms in that system of government that will lead to the establishment of a nonracial democracy.

(b) The United States will work toward this goal by encouraging the Government of South Africa to—

(1) repeal the present state of emergency and respect the principle of equal justice under law for citizens of all races;

(2) release Nelson Mandela, Govan Mbeki, Walter Sisulu, black trade union leaders, and all political prisoners;

(3) permit the free exercise by South Africans of all races of the right to form political parties, express political opinions, and otherwise participate in the political process;

(4) establish a timetable for the elimination of apartheid laws;

(5) negotiate with representatives of all racial groups in South Africa the future political system in South Africa; and

(6) end military and paramilitary activities aimed at neighboring states.

(c) The United States will encourage the actions set forth in subsection (b) through economic, political, and diplomatic measures as set forth in this Act. The United States will adjust its actions toward the Government of South Africa to reflect the progress or lack of progress made by the Government of South Africa in meeting the goal set forth in subsection (a).

POLICY TOWARD THE AFRICAN NATIONAL CONGRESS, ETC.

SEC. 102. (a) United States policy toward the African National Congress, the Pan African Congress, and their affiliates shall be designed to bring about a suspension of violence that will lead to the start of negotiations designed to bring about a nonracial and genuine democracy in South Africa.

(b) The United States shall work toward this goal by encouraging the African National Congress and the Pan African Congress, and their affiliates, to—

(1) suspend terrorist activities so that negotiations with the Government of South Africa and other groups representing black South Africans will be possible;

(2) make known their commitment to a free and democratic post-apartheid South Africa;

(3) agree to enter into negotiations with the South African Government and other groups representing black South Africans for the peaceful solution of the problems of South Africa;

(4) reexamine their ties to the South African Communist Party.

(c) The United States will encourage the actions set forth in subsection (b) through political and diplomatic measures. The United States will adjust its actions toward the Government of South Africa not only to reflect progress or lack of progress made by the Government of South Africa in meeting the goal set forth in subsection 101(a) but also to reflect progress or lack of progress made by the ANC and other organizations in meeting the goal set forth in subsection (a) of this section.

POLICY TOWARD THE VICTIMS OF APARTHEID

SEC. 103. (a) The United States policy toward the victims of apartheid is to use economic, political, diplomatic, and other effective means to achieve the removal of the root cause of their victimization, which is the apartheid system. In anticipation of the removal of the system of apartheid and as a further means of challenging that system, it is the policy of the United States to assist these victims of apartheid as individuals and through organizations to overcome the handicaps imposed on them by the system of apartheid and to help prepare them for their rightful roles as full participants in the political, social, economic, and intellectual life of their country in the post-apartheid South Africa envisioned by this Act.

(b) The United States will work toward the purposes of subsection (a) by—

(1) providing assistance to South African victims of apartheid without discrimination by race, color, sex, religious belief, or political orientation, to take advantage of educational opportunities in South Africa and in the United States to prepare for leadership positions in a post-apartheid South Africa;

(2) assisting victims of apartheid;

(3) aiding individuals or groups in South Africa whose goals are to aid victims of apartheid or to bring about legal or political challenges to the apartheid laws;

(4) furnishing direct financial assistance to those whose nonviolent activities had led to their arrest or detention by the South African authorities and (B) to the families of those killed by terrorist acts such as "necklacings";

(5) intervening at the highest political levels in South Africa to express the strong desire of the United States to see the development in South Africa of a nonracial democratic society;

(6) supporting the rights of the victims of apartheid through political, economic, or other sanctions in the event the Government of South Africa fails to make progress toward the removal of the apartheid and the establishment of such democracy; and

(7) supporting the rights of all Africans to be free of terrorist attacks by setting a time limit after which the United States will pursue diplomatic and political measures against those promoting terrorism and against those countries harboring such groups so as to achieve the objectives of this Act.

POLICY TOWARD OTHER COUNTRIES IN SOUTHERN AFRICA

Sec. 104. (a) The United States policy toward the other countries in the Southern African region shall be designed to encourage democratic forms of government, full respect for human rights, an end to cross-border terrorism, political independence, and economic development.

(b) The United States will work toward the purposes of subsection (a) by—

(1) helping to secure the independence of Namibia and the establishment of Namibia as a nonracial democracy in accordance with appropriate United Nations Security Council resolutions;

(2) supporting the removal of all foreign military forces from the region;

(3) encouraging the nations of the region to settle differences through peaceful means;

(4) promoting economic development through bilateral and multilateral economic assistance targeted at increasing opportunities in the productive sectors of national economies, with a particular emphasis on increasing opportunities for nongovernmental economic activities;

(5) encouraging, and when necessary, strongly demanding, that all countries of the region respect the human rights of their citizens and noncitizens residing in the country, and especially the release of persons persecuted for their political beliefs or detained without trial;

(6) encouraging, and when necessary, strongly demanding that all countries of the region take effective action to end cross-border terrorism; and

(7) providing appropriate assistance, within the limitations of American responsibilities at home and in other regions, to assist regional economic cooperation and the development of interregional transportation and other capital facilities necessary for economic growth.

POLICY TOWARD "FRONTLINE" STATES

Sec. 105. It is the sense of the Congress that the President should discuss with the Governments of the African "frontline" States the effects on them of disruptions in transportation and other economic links through South Africa and of means of reducing those effects.

POLICY TOWARD A NEGOTIATED SETTLEMENT

Sec. 106. (a)(1) United States policy will seek to promote negotiations among representatives of all citizens of South Africa to determine a future political system that will permit all citizens to be full participants in the governance of their country. The United States recognizes that important and legitimate political parties in South Africa include several organizations that have been banned and will work for the unbanning of such organizations in order to permit legitimate political viewpoints to be represented at such negotiations. The United States also recognizes that some of the organizations fighting apartheid have become infiltrated by Communists and that Communists serve on the governing boards of such organizations.

(2) To this end, it is the sense of the Congress that the President, the Secretary of State, or other appropriate high-level United States officials should meet with the leaders of opposition organizations of South Africa, particularly but not limited to those organizations representing the black majority. Furthermore, the President, in concert with the major allies of the United States and other interested parties, should seek to bring together opposition political leaders with leaders of the Government of South Africa for the purpose of negotiations to achieve a transition to the postapartheid democracy envisioned in this Act.

(b) The United States will encourage the Government of South Africa and all participants to the negotiations to respect the rights of all South Africans to form political parties, express political opinions, and otherwise participate in the political process, without fear of retribution by either governmental or nongovernmental organizations. It is the sense of the Congress that a suspension of violence is an essential precondition for the holding of negotiations. The United States calls upon all parties to the conflict to agree to a suspension of violence.

(c) The United States will work toward the achievement of an agreement to suspend violence and begin negotiations through coordinated actions with the major Western allies and with the governments of the countries in the region.

(d) It is the sense of the Congress that the achievement of an agreement for negotiations could be promoted if the United States and its major allies, such as Great Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan, and West Germany, would hold a meeting to develop a four-point plan to discuss with the Government of South Africa a proposal for stages of multilateral assistance to South Africa in return for the Government of South Africa implementing—

(1) an end to the state of emergency and the release of the political prisoners, including Nelson Mandela;

(2) the unbanning of the African National Congress, the Pan African Congress, the Black Consciousness Movement, and all other groups willing to suspend terrorism and to participate in negotiations and a democratic process;

(3) a revocation of the Group Areas Act and the Population Registration Act and the granting of universal citizenship to all South Africans, including homeland residents; and

(4) the use of the international offices of a third party as an intermediary to bring about negotiations with the object of the establishment of power-sharing with the black majority.

POLICY TOWARD INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION ON MEASURES TO END APARTHEID

Sec. 107. (a) The Congress finds that—

(1) international cooperation is a prerequisite to an effective anti-apartheid policy and to the suspension of terrorism in South Africa; and

(2) the situation in South Africa constitutes an emergency in international relations and that action is necessary for the protection of the essential security interests of the United States.

(b) Accordingly, the Congress urges the President to seek such cooperation among all individuals, groups, and nations.

POLICY TOWARD NECKLACING

Sec. 108. It is the sense of the Congress that the African National Congress should strongly condemn and take effective actions against the execution by fire, commonly known as "necklacing", of any person in any country.

UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR TO MEET WITH NELSON MANDELA

Sec. 109. It is the sense of the Senate that the United States Ambassador should promptly make a formal request to the South African Government for the United States Ambassador to meet with Nelson Mandela.

POLICY TOWARD THE RECRUITMENT AND TRAINING OF BLACK SOUTH AFRICANS BY UNITED STATES EMPLOYERS

Sec. 110. (a) The Congress finds that—

(1) the policy of apartheid is abhorrent and morally repugnant;

(2) the United States believes strongly in the principles of democracy and individual freedoms;

(3) the United States endorses the policy of political participation of all citizens;

(4) a free, open, and vital economy is a primary means for achieving social equality and economic advancement for all citizens; and

(5) the United States is committed to a policy of securing and enhancing human rights and individual dignity throughout the world.

(b) It is the sense of the Congress that United States employers operating in South Africa are obliged both generally to actively oppose the policy and practices of apartheid and specifically to engage in recruitment, and training of black and colored South Africans for management responsibilities.

TITLE II—MEASURES TO ASSIST VICTIMS OF APARTHEID

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR THE VICTIMS OF APARTHEID

Sec. 201. (a) Section 105(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 is amended—

(B) In addition to amounts used for purposes of subparagraph (A), the agency primarily responsible for administering this part, in collaboration with other appropriate departments or agencies of the United States, shall use assistance provided under this section or chapter 4 of part II of this Act to finance scholarships for students pursuing secondary school education in South Africa. The selection of scholarship recipients shall be by a nationwide panel or by regional panels appointed by the United States chief of diplomatic mission to South Africa.

"(ii) Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section and chapter 4 of part II of this Act for the fiscal years 1987, 1988, and 1989, up to an aggregate of $1,000,000 may be used in each such fiscal year for purposes of this subparagraph.

"SEC. 117. ASSISTANCE FOR DISADVANTAGED SOUTH AFRICANS.—In providing assistance under this chapter or under chapter 4 of part II of this Act for disadvantaged South Africans, priority shall be given to working with and through South African nongovernmental organizations whose leadership and staff are selected on a nonracial basis, and which have the support of the disadvantaged communities being served. The measure of this community support shall be the willingness of a substantial number of disadvantaged persons to participate in activities sponsored by these organizations. Such organizations to which such assistance may be provided include the Educational Opportunities Council, the South African Institute of Race Relations, READ, professional teachers' unions, the Outreach Program of the University of the Western Cape, the Funda Center in Soweto, SACHED, UPP Trust, TOPS, the Wigglesworth Fellowship Center (WFC), and civic and other organizations working at the community level which do not receive funds from the Government of South Africa."

HUMAN RIGHTS FUND

(b) The President shall prepare and transmit to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate within twelve months of the date of enactment of this Act, and every twelve months thereafter, a report on the extent to which significant progress has been made toward ending the system of apartheid, including—

(3) a prohibition on the importations of food, agricultural products, diamonds, and textiles from South Africa;

CONGRESSIONAL PRIORITY PROCEDURES

SEC. 602. (a)(1) The provisions of this subsection apply to the consideration in the House of Representatives of a joint resolution under sections 311(b), 401(d), and 501(d).

(2) A joint resolution shall, upon introduction, be referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives.

(3)(A) At any time after the joint resolution placed on the appropriate calendar has been on that calendar for a period of 5 legislative days, it is in order for any Member of the House (after consultation with the Speaker as to the most appropriate time for the consideration of that joint resolution) to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of that joint resolution. The motion is highly privileged and is in order even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to. All points of order against the joint resolution under clauses 2 and 6 of Rule XXI of the Rules of the House are waived. If the motion is agreed to, the resolution shall remain the unfinished business of the House until disposed of. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion is disagreed to shall not be in order.

(A) references in such paragraphs to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate shall be deemed to be references to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate; and

(B) amendments to the joint resolution are in order.

(c) For purposes of this subsection, the term "joint resolution" means only—

(A) in the case of section 311(b), a joint resolution which is introduced in a House of Congress within 3 legislative days after the Congress receives the report described in section 311(b) and for which the matter after the resolving clause reads as follows: "That the Congress, having received on the report of the President containing the determination required by section 311(b) of the Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act of 1986, disapproves of such determination," with the date of the receipt of the report inserted in the blank;

(B) in the case of section 401(d)(3), a joint resolution which is introduced in a House of Congress within 3 legislative days after the Congress receives the document described in section 401(d)(2) and for which the matter after the resolving clause reads as follows: "That the Congress, having received on the text of the international agreement described in section 401(d)(3) of the Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act of 1986, approves of such agreement," with the date of the receipt of the text of the agreement inserted in the blank; and

(C) in the case of section 501(d), a joint resolution which is introduced in a House of Congress within 3 legislative days after the Congress receives the determination of the President pursuant to section 501(c) and for which the matter after the resolving clause reads as follows: "That the Congress, having received on a determination of the President under section 501(c) of the Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act of 1986, approves the President's determination," with the date of the receipt of the determination inserted in the blank.

(d) As used in this section, the term "legislative day" means a day on which the House of Representatives or the Senate is in session, as the case may be.

(e) This section is enacted—

(1) as an exercise of the rulemaking powers of the House of Representatives and the Senate, and as such it is deemed a part of the Rules of the House and the Rules of the Senate, respectively, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in the House and the Senate in the case of joint resolutions under this section, and it supercedes other rules only to the extent that it is inconsistent with such rules; and

(2) with full recognition of the constitutional right of the House and the Senate to change their rules at any time, in the same manner, and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of the House or Senate and of the right of the Committee on Rules of the House of Representatives to report a resolution for the consideration of any measure.

ENFORCEMENT AND PENALTIES

SEC. 603. (a)(1) The President with respect to his authorities under section 601 shall take the necessary steps to ensure compliance with the provisions of this Act and any regulations, licenses, and orders issued to carry out this Act, including establishing mechanisms to monitor compliance with this Act and such regulations, licenses, and orders.

(2) In ensuring such compliance the President may—

(A) require any person to keep a full record of, and to furnish under oath, in the form of reports or otherwise, complete information, relative to any act or transaction described in this Act either before, during, or after the completion thereof, or relative to any interest in foreign property or relative to any property in which a foreign country or any national thereof has or has had any interest, or as may be otherwise necessary to enforce the provisions of this Act; and

(2) any person, other than an individual, that willfully violates the provisions of this Act, or any regulation, license, or order issued to carry out this Act shall be fined not more than $1,000,000;

(3) any individual who willfully violates the provisions of this Act or any regulation, license, or order issued to carry out this Act shall be fined not more than $50,000, or imprisoned not more than 10 years, or both; and

(4) any individual who violates section 301(a) or any regulations issued to carry out that section shall, instead of the penalty set forth in paragraph (2), be fined not more than 5 times the value of the kruggerands or gold coins involved.

(c)(1) Whenever a person commits a violation under subsection (b)—

(A) any officer, director, or employee of such person, or any natural person in control of such person who knowingly and willfully ordered, authorized, acquiesced in, or carried out the act or practice constituting the violation; and

(B) any agent of such person who knowingly and willfully carried out such act or practice, shall be fined not more than $10,000, or imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

(2) Paragraph (1) shall not apply in the case of a violation by an individual of section 301(a) of this Act or of any regulation issued to carry out that section.

(3) A fine imposed under paragraph (1) on an individual for an act or practice constituting a violation may not be paid, directly or indirectly, by the person committing the violation itself.

(d)(1) Any person who violates any regulation issued under section 208(d), or who, in a registration statement or report required by the Secretary of State, makes any untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statement therein not misleading, shall be subject to a civil penalty of not more than $10,000 imposed by the Secretary of State. The provisions of subsections (d), (e), and (f) of section 11 of the Export Administration Act of 1919 shall apply with respect to any such civil penalty.

(2) Any person who commits a willful violation under paragraph (1) shall upon conviction be fined not more than $1,000,000 or imprisoned not more than 2 years, or both.

STATE OR LOCAL ANTI-APARTHEID LAWS, ENFORCE

SEC. 506. Notwithstanding section 210 of Public Law 99-349 or any other provision of law—

(1) no reduction in the amount of funds for which a State or local government is eligible or entitled under any Federal law may be made, and

(2) no other penalty may be imposed by the Federal Government, by reason of the application of any State or local law concerning apartheid to any contract entered into by a State or local government for 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. FASCELL] will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BROOMFIELD] will be recognized for 30 minutes.

Before the gentleman from Florida is recognized, would the gentleman from California [Mr. DIXON] take the chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DIXON). The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. FASCELL].

Mr. FASCELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2½ minutes.

Mr. Speaker, the matter which I bring before the House today is intended to assist in the formulation of a bipartisan United States policy toward South Africa, encouraging that Government to dismantle its system of apartheid.

During the 99th Congress, the House has passed several bills imposing sanctions on South Africa—none have been enacted into law. By approving the motion which I offer today, we have a real opportunity to have United States policy toward South Africa enacted into law. Both Houses of Congress have recognized the need for a change in U.S. policy. The motion I offer today is intended to bring about a change in that policy.

On June 18, the House passed a strong sanctions bill, H.R. 4868. The Senate amendment to that bill, while not as strong as the House bill, is a good bill. It will send a strong bipartisan message to the Government and people of South Africa.

I know many Members would like to strengthen the bill. It is important for the Congress to send a strong message South Africa but it is equally important to send a message which has the support of both Houses. In light of the shortness of time remaining in this session and in light of the need to expedite sending this important legislative policy initiative to the President, H.R. 4868, as amended by the Senate, is the most appropriate vehicle at this time.

Let me briefly discuss the resolution contained in the rule, House Resolution 548. During the debate on this matter statements were made that this legislation preempts State and local anti-apartheid laws. The resolution House Resolution 548 simply states that it is not the intent of the House of Representatives that this bill limit or preempt State of local financial or commercial activity respecting South Africa.

Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of the motion.

Mr. BROOMFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. BROOMFIELD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks, and to include extraneous materials.)

Mr. BROOMFIELD. Mr. Speaker, in the face of a steadily deteriorating situation at home, and an increasingly united opposition abroad, the South African Government continues to cling to the debilitating system of apartheid. Let no one claim that there is confusion on this point: The Congress, the administration, and the American people deplore the system of apartheid and the human toll that lies in its wake.

Today, the House considers whether or not to accept the Senate amendment to H.R. 4868, the Anti-Apartheid Act of 1986. This amendment, of course, is substantially different from the bill passed by the House in late June. I believe it is a better bill than the more extreme legislation passed by the House. However, in my judgment, the House should have appointed conferees to work out the differences in the respective bills with our Senate colleagues. I believe that many constructive changes could have emerged from a conference.

However, the Democrat leadership in the House has apparently chosen to accept in its entirety the Senate bill.

I want to say, Mr. Speaker, in fairness, there are a number of aspects of this bill before us that will, if enacted, do a great deal of good. For example, title II contains provisions earmarking funds for scholarships for the victims of apartheid. It sets forth guidelines for assistance to disadvantaged South Africans. It earmarks funds for the promotion of human rights and takes steps to encourage blacks to use Export Import Bank facilities.

In addition, it does not require divestment, but requires U.S. companies to comply with a rigorous set of fair employment principles.

These are positive actions that provide assistance to nonwhite South Africans while maintaining numerous benefits to the black majority associated with the presence of the American business community in that country.

In other titles, the bill clearly sets forth U.S. policy toward South Africa. It calls for negotiations to reach international agreements incorporating sanctions against South Africa. Lastly, it prohibits after 90 days, the enforcement of State and local anti-apartheid laws with respect to contracts funded in whole or in part by the Federal Government.

Mr. Speaker, it seems to me in response to this latter point that our Democrat colleagues included in the rule we just adopted a most unusual and probably unconstitutional provision. Section 2 of the rule provides that upon adoption of H.R. 4868, the House shall be considered to have adopted a House resolution containing a statement of intent of the House regarding the issue of preemption. Mr. Speaker, this is a highly unusual and alarming procedural twist which appears to attempt to reshape the bill passed by the other body without going to conference. The language of the rule appears to try to rewrite our Constitution to allow States and localities to independently conduct their own foreign policies.

I want to conclude by saying it is unfortunate that this unusual procedural situation has developed. It can only jeopardize the bill's acceptance by the President. The White House has notified me this morning that the President is strongly opposed to enactment of this legislation in its present form.

Mr. WOLPE. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. LELAND].

(Mr. LELAND asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LELAND. Mr. Speaker, today we are considering legislation that will put the United States on the legislative record against the continuation of South Africa's brutal and oppressive policy of racism.

Unfortunately, the legislation before us today is not as comprehensive as the legislation passed earlier by this body on June 18, 1986, which would have put an end to all United States investment in and trade with South Africa.

South Africa is the only country in the world that judges how much freedom, justice, or property a person is entitled to strictly on the basis of his or her color. After decades of this racial oppression by the minority government in Pretoria the American public—and many in the world community—has now developed a clear and unequivocal abhorrence to the continuation of apartheid and any action, or inaction, on the part of the United States that could in any way support the maintenance of this hideous and violent policy.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
LEGISLATIVE RESEARCH COMMISSION
STATE LEGISLATIVE BUILDING
RALEIGH 27611

October 6, 1986

MEMORANDUM:

TO: Members of the LRC Committee on State
Investments in South Africa

FROM: Linwood Jones, Committee Counsel

RE: Federal Legislation on South Africa

As you are no doubt aware, Congress recently enacted legislation imposing economic sanctions against the Republic of South Africa. Although this legislation, (H.R. 4868 - "The Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act of 1986") was vetoed by the President, the House and Senate overrode the veto last week.

H.R. 4868 imposes the following sanctions against the Republic of South Africa:

Investments:

- (1) No new investments allowed in South Africa.

Bank Loans & Deposits:

- (2) No loans to companies owned or controlled by the South African government;
- (3) U.S. Banks cannot accept or hold deposit accounts of the South African government.

Import Restrictions:

(4) The following goods, with limited exceptions, may not be imported into the United States from South Africa:

- (a) kruggerands
- (b) arms, ammunition, and military vehicles
- (c) agricultural products and minerals produced, manufactured, or marketed by a government-owned or subsidized company
- (d) sugar
- (e) iron and steel
- (f) textiles
- (g) uranium and coal

Export Restrictions:

(5) The following goods and technology, with limited exceptions, may not be exported to South Africa by a United States company or the U.S. government:

- (a) nuclear technology
- (b) crude oil or refined petroleum
- (c) items on the U.S. munitions list
- (d) computer goods or technology to or for the use of any South African government agency (esp. military, police, prisons, and national security agencies)

U.S. Government Assistance:

(6) U.S. Government agencies will no longer procure goods and services from the government of South Africa;

(7) Of goods and services procured by the U.S. Government from South African businesses, preference will be given to businesses predominately owned by blacks and other non-whites;

(8) Scholarships and educational aid will be available to victims of apartheid;

(9) U.S. Government will assist in obtaining housing for South African employees of the U.S. government who are victims of apartheid.

South African Investments
page 3

Miscellaneous:

(10) South African air carriers denied landing rights in U.S.;

(11) U.S. will encourage, through political and diplomatic channels, the elimination of terrorist activities by working with the African National Congress, Pan African Congress, and South African government;

(12) U.S. companies with more than 25 employees in South Africa will be subject to a Code of Conduct that closely resembles the Sullivan Principles; however, the legislation specifically states that no penalty may be imposed on a corporation for failure to implement or follow this Code of Conduct.

As you were probably aware from media accounts of the sanctions, the federal legislation contains no requirement that companies withdraw from South Africa. Only new investments in South Africa are prohibited.

There was a great deal of discussion in Congress during the final vote on H.R. 4868 whether enactment of the bill would nullify all the state and local anti-apartheid laws. Approximately twenty states and numerous cities have enacted anti-apartheid laws. The most common state legislation requires divestiture of state pension funds or other state funds from companies doing business in South Africa. Of course, we are looking at the divestiture of state pension funds and university trust funds in North Carolina.

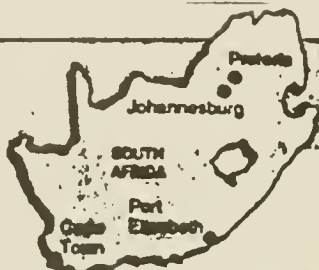

Since the United States Constitution provides that federal laws take precedence over state laws, there is some question whether the states can enact or continue to enforce existing anti-apartheid laws after the passage of the new federal legislation. If the federal legislation is deemed to "preempt" the field on this subject, state legislation on the subject is not valid. It is difficult to say, however, whether Congress has preempted the field on South African sanctions, especially since state divestiture laws do not conflict with any specific provision in the new federal law. (Sen. Lugar of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is the chief proponent of the notion that the new federal law preempts state and local laws; in response to Lugar's assertion, the House of Representatives, when considering H.R. 4868 for final passage, passed a resolution stating that it was not the intent of the House in passing H.R. 4868 to preempt state and local anti-apartheid laws.)
